Deep-Sea Diver Continues Search of River Bottom For Head of Murdered Woman While Experts Examine Cloths Found Along Shores

The Merrimack river gave up no more clues today in the suitcase murder mystery, although the deep-sea diver from Medford engaged by the district attorney's office, continued his explorations of the river bottom in the vicinity of Tyngsboro bridge while hundreds of people lined the shores and watched the continuance of the search.

The gruesome discovery of two suitcases containing dismembered portions of the body of a young woman—but with the head missing—on Saturday and Sunday, has brought town, city and state police into concerted action, aided by scores of privately operated searching groups, who probe around the river banks and in nearby woods and swamps hoping that the head of the woman may be found and the identity of the body established. The police are free to admit that until the head is found there is scant chance of identification and all eyes now at hand are too general to be of any particular value. They believe, however, that the head of the woman is in the river somewhere between Nashua and Lowell. Because of low water it cannot pass over Pawtucket dam should it float downstream to that point, for the dam flashboards would prevent its fall. A state police officer is keeping constant watch at the dam, however. Great significance is being attached to the discovery yesterday afternoon of two bundles of cloth in the river.

SUPERIOR COURT MAY ADJOURN TO CAMBRIDGE

Superior criminal court, which opened with two sessions here yesterday, will in all probability adjourn to Cambridge this afternoon, according to District Attorney Arthur K. Reading.

The district attorney said that he would gladly continue the sessions here during the entire month of September for the convenience of the Lowell members of the bar, but because of the fact that so many of the attorneys have not been ready for trial of their cases, there isn't much left to do here.

RECITES TERRIFYING EXPERIENCE OF NIGHT ON SOUND IN OPEN BOAT

Mildred Rich, One of Four Brooklyn Girls Adrift All Night on Long Island Sound, Visiting Friends in Lowell—Faced Death When Tide Swept Boat Out to Sea

Miss Mildred Rich of Brooklyn, N. Y., one of the four young girls who spent all night in a row boat in Long Island Sound about two weeks ago, is visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Austin Galloway, 384 Wentworth avenue, this city. The young woman came to Lowell a few days after her thrilling experience in the treacherous waters of New York's famous sound where she and her girl companions faced death in the night when their rowboat drifted out to sea with the tide and became unmanageable. With a single oar as a propelling power, the boat went adrift off Northport, L. I.

"It was the worst experience I have ever undergone or hope to again," said Miss Rich to The Sun this morning. "When we playfully started out in the little rowboat we little realized the awful events that were to follow. Unconsciously we drifted with the tide. A storm came up and to cap the climax, we lost an oar. Luckily Miss Jerome Candela, a 12-year-old member of the party, was an expert swimmer. She dove overboard about a mile from shore and summoned help. We were all in an exhausted condition when assistance arrived. I tell you I wouldn't want to go through it all again."

Miss Rich has fully recovered from the shock of the trying experience. She is an intimate friend of the Galloway family and came to this city to forget about salt water and rowboats. She will remain in Lowell for an indefinite period.

Municipal motion pictures will be conducted under the auspices of the park department at Washington park this evening and at the Allen street playgrounds tomorrow evening.

FAMILY DRIVEN FROM HOME BY FLAMES

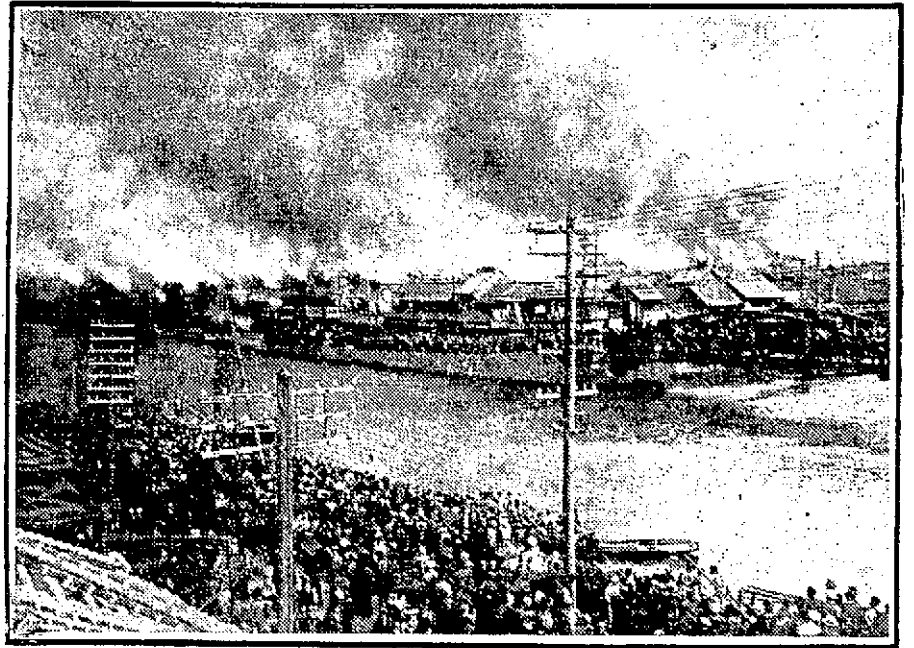

The home of Mr. and Mrs. A. Zarephes and family, located at 555 Rogers street, directly on the Lowell-Tewksbury line, was practically destroyed by fire early this morning, and the occupants of the building were forced to make their exit scantily attired.

It is not known how the fire started, and when it was discovered shortly before 2:30 o'clock the building was a seething furnace. The occupants of the house were able to make their escape and an alarm was sounded from box 16. Several companies of the fire department responded, and although lines of hose were laid, the firemen were unable to cope with the blaze until the entire building had been practically destroyed. Very little of the furniture or personal effects was saved.

ITALY CHALLENGES RIGHT OF LEAGUE TO INTERVENE IN GRECO-ITALIAN DISPUTE

Announcement By Italian Spokesman Creates Sensation in Council Chamber—Crisis Aggravated—Two Regiments of Italian Infantry Land at Corfu to Relieve Sailors—Friends of League Perturbed

GENEVA, Sept. 5.—(By the Associated Press)—Italy today challenged the right of the League of Nations to intervene, in the Greco-Italian dispute when her spokesman, Signor Salandra, declared that the conflict belonged solely to the domain of the inter-allied council of ambassadors and did not fall within the competency of the league.

This announcement created an immense sensation in the council chamber, which was crowded with many Americans among the spectators.

After a reply from M. Poincaré, former Greek foreign minister, upholding the attitude of his government, Lord Robert Cecil, of England, added a further sensation by insisting that articles 10, 12 and 15 of the covenant of the League of Nations should be read immediately, both in French and English and be declaring that, if these articles were not read, it would be a breach of the covenant.

Fresh Calamity—10,000 Die in Fire
Fresh calamity has overtaken smitten Tokio and the terror-stricken remnants of its population. Nearly 10,000 people, seeking refuge in the yard of a mill clothing factory located in a suburb, were trapped by flames and burned to death. Food and water are scarce in the capital.

In only one dispatch has there been indications that the death list will not reach the proportions already indicated. This was a message from the radio corporation of America in Japan which said that the Japanese

Mrs. M. Cunningham, 27 Viola street, Lowell, Mass., says:

"My liver and kidneys were in a terrible shape. I was tired and I had to get up every time I could not sleep. Every time I moved I had pain in my back. That was awful. I was thin and run down. My stomach bothered me. Food that I ate did not sit in my stomach. I had acid and sour gas coming through me and making me feel foolish. Eating a meal meant hours of suffering for me. I could not even smile or feel good. I had every ache in my whole back, spine, liver and kidneys. At last I would give up."

MOORE STREET JOB NOW UNDER WAY

The Stinson Bros. Co., who have been awarded the contract for the supplying of 20,000 square yards of bituminous concrete for the street department, have begun operations in their plant in Plain street and today the first loads of the material were delivered to the Moore street job. The plant will be kept in operation right along until the contract has been fulfilled and it is believed the company will cause no delay to the street department in supplying the material called for.

Superior Court May Adjourn to Cambridge

Lowell bar, said the district attorney, "but I cannot allow the court to break down because there are no cases ready for trial. It costs the county $250 per day for the court, and I must see that this money is not wasted."

The first case to go to the jury at the sitting was submitted for deliberation this morning at the sessions presided over by Judge J. J. Mahoney of Lawrence. It was the appeal case of Peter Spanos from the Lowell district court, the charge being illegal keeping. The case went to trial yesterday afternoon and was given to the jury at 11:30 o'clock.

The jury had not reported when court took the noon recess at 1 o'clock.

The case of John J. Kirsing, charged with keeping, which was also brought up on appeal from the Lowell district court, was the next to go to trial. The case was given to the jury shortly before 1 o'clock.

In the court of the first sessions before Judge Stanley E. Qua, a jury was empaneled in the case of William Pass, charged with operating an auto in such a manner as to endanger the lives of the public. This case was on trial at the noon recess.

The alleged offence occurred October 29, 1922, when the defendant was charged with driving a truck that struck Mary McDonald. The McDonald girl, with six other girls, was walking along Broadway in Dracut when the accident happened.

Several cases were called for disposition also before Judge Qua. Philip L. Johnson, charged with non-support, was placed on probation upon agreement to pay expenses of $116.15.

Peter Rusick, charged with drunkenness, was sentenced to the state farm.

James Morrison was placed on probation with the understanding that he contribute $15 each week for the support of his minor children.

Richard Lamson, charged with assault upon an officer, was placed on probation.

Two other cases arising from disturbances in connection with the strike at the Saco-Lowell plant, were also called for disposition, and District Attorney Read, recommended that fines be imposed in each instance upon Tom Gergelags and Valentin Larkus, who were charged with assault.

The court was informed that the two men were included in a crowd from which a piece of pipe was thrown at some workers during the strike, but there was no positive evidence that it was these two who threw the pipe.

Judge Qua said that he was opposed to merely a fine in cases of violence growing out of industrial disturbances, because the fines were generally paid by friends of the defendant, and not the more imposition of a fine had the deterring effect. However, in view of the fact that there was no positive evidence against the two defendants before him, he accepted the recommendation of the district attorney.

PRAISE FOR LOWELL.

POLICE DEPARTMENT

Believing that the citizens of Lowell should have brought to their attention the character of the men in the Lowell police department and their devotion to duty, William F. Ireland, of Portland, Me., has written an open letter to The Sun.

An auto owned by Mr. Ireland, manager of the Richardson, Hill & Co., stock brokers at Portland, was stolen in Portland some time ago and suspicion was directed against William S. Smith, the young man who was arrested in Chicago and brought to this city in connection with charge of the "Black Legion" case. Accompanied by a Portland officer, Mr. Richardson came to this city and through the efforts of the local department, eventually recovered his car.

Mr. Richardson's letter follows:

Editor Lowell Sun,

Lowell, Mass.

Dear Sir: You and your fellow citizens are certainly to be congratulated on the efficiency of your police department and their devotion to duty. I arrived in Lowell in the late afternoon of August 31st, a complete stranger, in search of my automobile which had been stolen by a man I had been in their custody.

Captain David Petrie, who at that time should have been going off duty, gave the case his personal attention, and did not leave until he had thoroughly interrogated the prisoner and obtained from him a confession, which ultimately led to the finding of my car.

This confession was immediately and collectively followed up in person by your superintendent of police, Thomas R. Atkinson, and by Inspector William F. Liston. Inspector Liston had also been working on the case very efficiently for a day or two preceding my arrival.

consideration was given by the officers in question or other members of the department with whom I came in contact, to hours, distances, time or anything else, which might help to settle the matter. All this was done for a complete stranger, not a resident of Lowell, and to find an automobile not even stolen from Lowell. I certainly want to pay tribute not only to the men mentioned above, but to the police department of Lowell and to congratulate the citizens upon the efficiency of the department and the character of its personnel.

Thanking you not only for publishing this, but for the services which your city has rendered me, I am

Very truly yours,

The only two Lowell persons believed to be in Japan at this time are thought to have escaped the horrors of the great catastrophe there although reassuring word is anxiously waited by their relatives and friends. Both originally located in the Kobe section of Japan, regarded as the safest part of the empire.

Executive capacity by the Tremont and Suffolk mills, recently returned here after spending six years in Japan.

DISCUSS NEW CLUBHOUSE
A special meeting of the U.M.A.W. members was held last evening in the clubhouse in Pawtucket street at which the matter of the proposed new clubhouse was discussed. The organization has already held several meetings in regard to the matter but as yet no definite action has been taken. It is probable that at the next meet-making, the association will be able to make public its plans and designs for a new and up-to-date clubhouse.

Her Dream Realized -

MRS. JACK HOUK
1315 TENNESSEE ST., LAWRENCE, KAN.

EVERY young woman like Mrs. Houk before her marriage dreams dreams and has visions of her ideal home with her husband, and healthy, happy children to make her joy complete. But as time goes on her dreams are not realized, she has no children, her life is embittered and it is hard for her to be reconciled to the conditions as they exist. To every young woman who is in this condition the following letter should bring hope and encouragement, as we know of numberless homes that have been blessed with children, just as this home was, after all hope had been abandoned.

Here Follows Mrs. Houk's Personal Letter:

"I was of a nervous disposition and always had a tired, worn-out feeling. I would get sharp pains in my side when working too hard or when waiting too much and sometimes I would have those awful dropped down feelings. I have had such troubles since I was a very young girl and had got very little result from all the medicine I had taken, and one doctor told me that I would never have children unless I had an operation. I had heard a great deal about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound so I thought I would try it. By the time I had finished the fourth bottle I noticed a change in my health. We took a trip to California at this time and I kept on with the medicine. My health continued to improve and I now have a big, healthy baby boy six months old. I am not doing my own housework yet as I want to get good and strong first as it means a lot to my baby for me to be well while he is nursing. I have spoken highly of the Vegetable Compound to my friends, and I am more than willing for you to use these facts as a testimonial." Mrs. Jack Houk, 1315 Tennessee St., Lawrence, Kansas.

LOWELL PEOPLE IN EARTHQUAKE ZONE

The only two Lowell persons believed to be in Japan at this time are thought to have escaped the horrors of the great catastrophe there although reassuring word is anxiously waited by their relatives and friends. Both originally located in the Kobe section of Japan, regarded as the safest part of the empire.

Mrs. Arthur Gorman, nee Kathleen Smith, is believed to have recently returned from Kobe to Korea. The other Lowell person is Samuel Maxwell, a brother of Moses Marks, Central street tailor. Mr. Maxwell's business is conducted in Kobe.

Charles Hedrick, brother of Clifton F. Hedrick who is employed in an executive capacity by the Tremont Suffolk mills, recently returned here after spending six years in Japan.

DISCUSS NEW CLUBHOUSE

A special meeting of the U.M.A.C. members was held last evening in the clubhouse in Pawtucket, at which the matter of the proposed new clubhouse was discussed. The organization has already held several meetings in regard to the matter but as yet no definite action has been taken. It is probable that at the next meeting...

WHERE TOKIO FIRE STARTED

The Mitsukoshi store—one of the biggest department stores in the orient—is where the Tokio fire started. Owing to the breaking of water mains the fire department was helpless in trying to check its spread.

Fresh Calamity Hits Tokio

On the other hand, Admiral Edwin A. Anderson, commanding the United States Asiatic Fleet, says the latest unofficial reports give the casualties in the capital and Yokohama as 240,000 dead and 450,000 injured. A wireless message from Admiral Anderson to Rear Admiral Edward W. Eberle, chief of naval operations, was picked up in San Francisco. Naval officers in San Francisco believe that Admiral Anderson, who is speaking to Japanese waters obtained advice of conditions in Japan by radio before communicating with the Rear Admiral Eberle. Another estimate, this one coming from the Eastern News agency, says that 32,000 persons have been killed in the entire stricken district.

273 Earth Shocks

Two hundred and sixteen distinct earth shocks were felt in Tokio last Saturday, followed by 57 on Sunday. The most severe tremor was of six minutes' duration. The flames that swept the capital burned for fifty hours, leaving Tokio and its environs in ruins and desolation. Fire and earth convulsions together have devastated an area of twenty-one square miles in and about Tokio, demolishing 350,000 houses.

Suffering Not Exaggerated

The suffering of Yokohama, too, appears not to have been exaggerated. An official statement received by U. Oyama, the Japanese consul general in San Francisco, says that the great port itself and the Yokosuka naval station have been wiped out. This message, sent by a former Japanese consul general who is now at Shanghai, added that more than half of Tokio has been destroyed.

New Volcano Adds to Horror

From Osaka comes a despatch asserting that a new volcano has broken into activity in the Chichibu range, 50 miles northwest of Tokio. Meanwhile, the Japanese cities and towns unaffected by the disaster are heading every effort to relieve the condition of the millions who are believed to be suffering from injuries and lack of food. Cargoes of rice are arriving at Yokohama and Shirogawa.

U. S. Ships Bringing Supplies

The efforts of the Japanese themselves are soon to be augmented by aid from across the Pacific. Seven United States destroyers and a cruiser are speeding to Yokohama with supplies, while two army transports expect to steam from Manila for Japanese waters today. All shipping board vessels in the Far East have been ordered to take any part in the relief work that may be assigned to them by Admiral Anderson. Shipping board steamers in Pacific coast ports have received instructions to suspend freight and passenger booking for 30 days so as to insure the transportation of relief supplies.

Members of Imperial Family Killed

LONDON, Sept. 5.—(By the Associated Press Earthquake) The Japanese embassy here received a telephone message today from Princess Kinshirakawa in Paris saying she had received information that the Dowager Princess Yamafusa, Princess Hirokuni and Prince Moronaka, members of the Imperial family, are dead in Tokio as a result of the earthquake.

Famous Health Resort Wiped Out

A Central News despatch from Shanghai says it is feared that Nikko, the health resort at which the Japanese emperor has been staying during the summer, was destroyed with terrible loss. Nikko is situated north of Tokio and approximately 80 miles southeast of Nikati.

Dr. Wheeler and a Mr. Morrison, prominent British residents of Yokohama and the French consul there, among the dead, says a Central News despatch.

Thousands Flock to Kobe

From the same source it is learned that all foreigners staying at Japanese hotels are safe with the exception of one named Hirst. Large numbers of the Japanese residents of Tokio and Yokohama are returning to those cities.

The British consul at Kobe reports that thousands of foreign refugees are arriving there but that the details of the disaster are lacking, although it is confirmed that there was great toll in Tokio and Yokohama.

American Steamer Damaged

The American steamship Zelma City is reported to have been damaged during the upheaval, and to have run ashore near Yokohama. Suzuki and company, Japanese merchants in London, have informed Lloyd's that, as far as they could ascertain, there was no great loss of shipping from the earthquake.

Red Cross Quotas Fixed

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—Fixing of chapter quotas throughout the country today was the signal for the formal launching of the campaign of the American Red Cross to raise a $5,000,000 relief fund for sufferers in the Japanese earthquake zone. Divisional quotas totaling $2,500,000, the excess above the $5,000,000 goal being fixed to permit adjustments, were announced at Red Cross headquarters last night and divisional managers were instructed to assign quotas for all of the 3600 chapters of the organization.

The state department today was pressing its efforts to obtain information as to Americans in the stricken zone. Not only have lists of those of whom relatives and friends have sought information been sent to American diplomatic and consular offices in Japan, but consular officers stationed at other points in the Orient have been ordered to assist in the work of obtaining information as to American citizens and giving them any assistance needed.

In addition to the seven destroyers of the American Asiatic fleet proceeding with relief supplies for the suffering, the cruiser Huron, flagship of Admiral Anderson, was steaming at full speed to Yokohama today with food and medical supplies, expecting to arrive there tomorrow morning, laden with relief supplies for Yokohama. She will be followed by the transport Merrit.

REV. FR. HEFFERNAN HOW ST. MICHAEL'S

Abstract of His Sermon at
Dedication of St. Michael's
School

Following is an abstract of the sermon delivered by Rev. Fr. Heffernan in connection with the dedication of St. Michael's new school. It was crowded out of yesterday's edition.

"The splendid outpouring of people on this magnificent occasion marks this as a memorable day, not only in the annals of this parish, but in the history of the city as well. Surrounded as we are, by a bishop and clergy, at first glance we might think of it as a purely ecclesiastical affair, but it is a civic ceremony as well—a gathering of people, regardless of creed, race or nationality. And in America is not such a gathering eminently proper, for is not every parochial school in our land an inspiration to youth, an inspiration that leads to loyalty in citizenship and lofty ideals in patriotism?"

"The ambition of every parochial school is, to be a torch bearer of knowledge, a citadel of law and order, a protector of freedom and liberty. We know that often these truths regarding us are denied, but, and I make this statement boldly, we do strive to give that teaching without which no nation can survive, the foundation of a truly Christian life. So all citizens of our community should be here today to share in this important celebration, important not only to the people of St. Michael's parish but to the citizens of Lowell as well.

"To our schools children come in all the innocence and purity of their first years of life. Our desire is to preserve this purity, to protect this innocence. We do more, we teach them the fundamental truths of Christianity which establish for them a moral law and we endeavor to stamp indelibly on their youthful minds and hearts a respect for this law, so that when they take their places as citizens of this nation, they may reflect credit on themselves and their church. They are trained on principles founded on moral law and on truths that must be lived up to. If men are honest with themselves and true to their religion and their country.

"We find no fault with other schools except that we recognize the obligation of parents to send their children to schools wherein they may be trained in principles that make of them good citizens and worthy members of our communities. There can be little time for religion, people will say, if time sufficient is given to the acquiring of necessary secular knowledge. The church during twenty centuries has found it very easy to give, not only secular knowledge but at the same time to lay the foundation of that moral education that will lift body, mind and soul to a supernatural atmosphere where the child washed in the waters of Baptism and anointed with the chrism of Confirmation can live up to the law of God. A Christian more properly the life of a citizen. Without moral law, there can be no good citizenship. Theodore Roosevelt, a former president, tells us very emphatically that to educate a man's mind and not his morals makes him a menace to the community.

"From one end of the country to the other, there is today a cry for more religion. Where and when are men to get religion if not in the schools, in the earlier years of their existence? President Hadley of Yale says, it is impossible to give religion to a child after his education is completed, because his mind has already been moulded. His thoughts trained in certain grooves. Perhaps, in the not far distant future, this land between the Arctic circle and the Rio Grande will lead in civilization, but this prediction will never be realized unless the men and women who are to make up that civilization form their lives on principles that rise to lofty heights, God is the beginning, the center and the end of all things and without Him there can be no civilization that will endure.

"The God-fearing men who laid its foundation and built up this edifice of democracy were products of private schools wherein were taught the ten commandments and tenets of religion. No one need ask me not need I tell you how strongly our nation is built nor in what position it stands before the world. It has never yet been conquered. Still that soul training is denied today to the youth of our country until the schools have become practically godless. Oh, may God come back to them, to remain as He will in that building over there, in that school where there will be no room for radicalism or for the things that will destroy our country.

"Religion, education and patriotism will go hand in hand in the future as in the past."

SCHOOL WAS BUILT

The new St. Michael's parochial school, formally dedicated Monday is another splendid example of craftsmanship of contractors of this vicinity. The building plans and specifications included all of the newest approved ideas in school construction and the contractors made a highly creditable and workmanlike job of their work. Special credit is due to the general contractor, Zori A. Houle of Braintree, who personally supervised the work. To Mr. Houle, who has made a specialty of such work for many years, it afforded another chance to add to his already well-established reputation as a builder and he made the most of it. The work is on a par with the finest construction ever built in the city. The church and St. Joseph's church in Lowell. The crushed stone and gravel for the undertaking was supplied by Antonio

Pallotta of Bridge street. Mr. Pallotta operates a quarry and stone-crushing plant in Braintree, the product of which is widely used. Two mammoth crushers are now in operation there and the third is in the process of construction. Much of his product is used in modern road construction. Barrett specification roofing, bonded to school annex, needs no comment. Suffice to say it was up to the standard as always the case when Roux does the roofing.

PLAN BIG MEETING
It was announced at textile headquarters this morning that an open meeting for loomfixers and in fact all textile operatives in this city, will be held next Friday evening in Trades & Labor hall, Central street. The speaker of the evening will be Horace Riviére of Manchester, N. H., general organizer for the United Textile Workers of America.

Italy Challenges Right of League to Intervene

Continued

It was to be disregarded, the whole of settlement of Europe would be shaken.

The articles in question were cited by Greece as the basis of her appeal to the league and stipulate that the council of the league has a clear right to an intervention when there is danger of rupture between any of the states which are members of the league.

Further discussion of the Greco-Italian crisis was adjourned to an unspecified date, in order to give the members of the council an opportunity to examine the Italian declaration and decide upon their future attitude in the crisis, which is generally regarded as having been aggravated by Signor Salandra's pronouncement.

Italy's Troops Land

CORFU, Sept. 5.—(By the Associated Press.)—Two regiments of Italian infantry have landed here to relieve the sailors who have been garrisoning the island.

The Greek soldiers and gendarmes, together with the Greek prefect and police chief, have left for home aboard the steamer Imene. They were the last representatives of the Athens government in Corfu.

Vice Admiral Sironetti, the Italian governor of the island, has published a manifesto asking the people to be calm and to await a solution of the Greco-Italian dispute. He has visited all the military posts established in the interior and along the coast.

The Italian troops have taken up their headquarters at the famous villa which was once the summer palace of the former German kaiser.

Friends of League Perturbed

LONDON, Sept. 5.—Friends of the League of Nations among the British newspapers are gravely perturbed at Mussolini's threat to withdraw should the league insist upon intervening in the Greco-Italian conflict.

The league is charged at its foundation; it must take up the charge or abdicant," say the Daily Chronicle. The morning Post asserts that the league is now at the very crisis of its career and that it almost looks as if this present situation would be its death warrant.

Other newspapers urge the league to stand fast and not allow itself to be intimidated by the Italian premier, which would mean suicide. On the other hand, both the Daily Mail and the Daily Express indulge in tirades against Lord Robert Cecil. The latter newspaper visualizes the dire consequences that would result from the application of a moral and economic boycott to Italy, which it says would spell war wherein Great Britain and France would have to do most of the fighting.

Clean Men

Men who enjoy cleaning up as a boy enjoys a swim

THE best part of the world's work must be done by men who are big and men who are clean.

Take the railroad engineers—Nothing could be more useful than the work they do; few men carry so much responsibility.

If you ever knew a locomotive engineer you know how he enjoyed being clean—how he loved the luxury of washing. He never felt safe until he felt clean.

Lifebuoy Health Soap is a great favorite with railroad men and their families. They find that Lifebuoy not only cleans deeper and better—it also destroys invisible germs. Then, too, it is a soap that can be used frequently and generously on tender skin. It heals and soothes, and destroys the least trace of skin odor.

It is because of Lifebuoy's antiseptic properties that this soap is regarded as a great aid to family health.

The copious Lifebuoy lather releases a wonderful substance which removes all dangerous germ life that lodges on the skin. You can smell this antiseptic—a cleanly, wholesome odor which vanishes almost instantly.

Lifebuoy is absolutely pure—its bland oils of palm fruit and coconut are soothing and keep the skin in splendid condition. Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass.

Mother—be sure that a cake of Lifebuoy is ready when your husband and children come home from work or play. Once they know it, no other soap satisfies. It costs little—yet its health protection is priceless.

Langdon Gibson was one of the seven members of the Stanton expedition which completed the first exploration in 1890 of the Grand Canyon and Colorado river. The expedition traveled 1200 miles, the lives of three members being sacrificed. He spent 18 months with the late Rear Admiral Robert E. Peary when the latter explored for the first time the northern coast of Greenland.

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—Mme. Olga Petrova, the actress, said today on her arrival on the Olympic from Paris, that the movement for a royalist revolution in France is being widely discussed in Paris. Many of her friends, she said, believed France would return to a monarchical government soon.

Demonstrated by
Lady Factory Representative

LADIES! Commencing Tuesday, Sept. 4, and continuing the rest of the week, we have arranged for your entertainment a series of interesting, practical ironing demonstrations by a special lady representative of the manufacturer, and touching upon every phase of this absorbing problem.

You will see ironed before your eyes, perfectly, and with an ease that is fairly astonishing, not only flat pieces, so-called, but men's shirts, house dresses, children's clothing, undergarments, etc., and articles that you would otherwise believe it impossible to iron excepting by hand.

To see this wonderful (entirely automatic) device in operation is to realize that the recent prediction of a Workless Day is not far from fulfillment, when electricity will perform every household task at the mere push of a button.

THE MURDER MYSTERY

Lowell is the centre of a murder mystery which, however, may have had its origin perhaps fifty or a hundred miles away. It is brought to Lowell by the finding in the Merrimack river at Tyngsboro, two suitcases containing parts of a woman's body, but not the head nor any part having a physical mark that would assist in identification. Already the state police who are working hard on the case have several clues; but whether they will result in solving the mystery is yet doubtful.

Murder will out, it is said, but sometimes the traces left are so misleading that the culprit escape. It is hoped that the police will either find the head or receive some information that may lead to the detection of the guilty party. It is important that the names of women missing be sent to the police in order if possible, to help in solving this mystery.

The newspapers are giving much space to the gruesome case merely in an effort to aid the police to bring the murderer to justice. If a foul murder were not committed, there would be no reason for disposing of the body piecemeal. That alone is the fact upon which the police are relying in the present case. They realize that a murder of the most brutal kind has been committed, and they hope that through the publicity given the case in the press, the victim may be identified and the murderer found and punished to the full extent of the law.

The police believe that the crime may prove to be a parallel of the Susan Grey case in which the body was disposed of in much the same way following a criminal operation.

We are quite confident that the solution of this mystery will show that the parties concerned are not in any way connected with Lowell.

THE JAPANESE DISASTER

If the reports from the vicinity of the earthquake in Japan are anywhere near being true, the disaster is one of the worst of the kind in recorded history. It is a sad blow to Japan, a rapidly growing and enterprising nation. The number of dead is estimated at from 200,000 to 250,000 in Tokio and Yokohama alone, while many other towns and cities have also been devastated. The main upheaval was followed by fire which has multiplied the horrors of the disaster and the extent of the losses.

Japan is included in one of the worst seismic zones in the world and it experiences mild vibrations or shocks at some periods almost daily. The line of volcanic action affecting Japan extends from southeastern Asia, across the Japanese archipelago, the Kurile Islands and the Alaskan chain to Alaska.

These convulsions of nature are due to volcanic action, chiefly to the formation of gases that cause an upheaval, or else the cooling or evacuation of gases or molten matter down deep below the surface, causing the crust of the earth to sink or collapse. There are various other causes chiefly due to the force of gravity in restoring the equilibrium of the various parts of the earth, when from one cause or another, some portion of it is drawn away from the centre to an extent that destroys the natural balance. Nature soon rectifies such conditions by pulling in the out-tending matter and holding the terrestrial sphere well balanced upon its axis.

This disaster in Japan comes at a time when the empire was enjoying a high degree of prosperity and when the government was prospecting over the earth to find a good place for the outlet of her teeming population.

Dwellings and other structures are of the flimsiest character and would be great food for a conflagration as they have proved in this case, according to the dispatches.

President Coolidge was prompt to issue a call for relief and to despatch war vessels with orders to do everything possible for the sufferers and to look after the Americans there so far as may be possible.

The appalling calamity appeals to the humane sympathy of the other nations of the earth. Italy and Greece should stop their warring and use their efforts in helping to bring aid to the sufferers. The extent of the disaster is apparently beyond conception to those who have never experienced any upheaval of the kind. It would not be surprising if in time the greater part of the Japanese islands should be submerged. Those who live on these islands must feel that they are liable at any instant to be swallowed up in a seismic paroxysm such as that which has just spread ruin and disaster over a large portion of Japan.

SELECTIVE IMMIGRATION

Secretary of Labor Davis, who studied closely all conditions with reference to the immigration question while he was abroad recently, plans to present to congress at the next session a concrete statement of his findings and conclusions, as are told. Chief among his recommendations will be the suggestion of a really selective immigration program of rules based on a complete examination by agents of the immigration service at consulates abroad, the enrollment of all immigrants upon reaching America, close surveillance of them to determine whether they can and will embrace American traditions and customs, and the fixing of a five-year probationary period, during any part of which aliens may be deported for cause.

Secretary Davis wisely says that sometimes conditions at Ellis Island are far from desirable for the newcomers to our shores, but stringent rules are sometimes necessary if we are to be preserved from the importation of diseases that would otherwise result.

The proposed selective procedure system to be conducted abroad and strongly urged by Dr. Davis, is likely to eliminate many distressing conditions hitherto reported at Ellis Island. A more rigid, selective immigration law should result in excluding the undesirable and dangerous characters and bringing here only the rugged who mean to make their homes here and become loyal and law-abiding citizens. It should not, however, discriminate merely on the grounds of nationality as might easily be the case if the plans of Secretary Davis were left in the hands of prejudiced officials.

Cause For Suspicion

In the smoking car the conversation turned on the merits and demerits of various ways of preserving health. One stout, florid man held forth with great eloquence. "Look at me!" he shouted. "Never a day's sickness in my life, and all due to simple food. Why, gentlemen?" he continued, "from the age of 20 in that of 40 I lived an absolutely regular life—no effeminate delicacies, no late hours, no extravagances. Every day, summer and winter, I was in bed regularly at 9 o'clock and up again at 3 in the morning. I worked from 8 to 1, then had dinner—a plain dinner, mark my words; after that an hour's exercise; then—"

"Excuse me, sir," interrupted the facetious stranger in the corner, "but what were you in for?"—Rehebebs Sunday Herald.

Road Philosophy

One road that leads to Overton. One road that leads to the sky. Along a ridge of western hills. That stand serene and high.

Another road to Overton. Strolls through the valleys low. And turns and winds beside a brook. With paces grave and slow.

And there are some who take the road That ends along the sky. And some there who take the road Where brook-bright meadows lie.

Since both roads go to Overton. At Overton folks say, If we but come, they little care About our choice of way.

ARTHUR WALLACE PEACH, in the Christian Herald.

Very Obstinate

This story comes all the way from Constantinople. One day a hodja's mother-in-law—a hodja is a Turkish priest fell into a torrential river which flowed past the hodja's house. The priest ran out to look for the body, and went upstream. "Why upstream?" asked his neighbors. "She flowed down," replied the hodja. "She is as obstinate that I am here who would insist on drowning against the current!"

Blamed the Weather

They met after a lapse of many years. The recognition was mutual and their greetings were cordial. "How lovely to see you again. Why, you've scarcely changed a bit," said one. "Yes, glad, and you, too, have hardly changed. Let's see, how long is it since we last met?" returned the other. "It must be ten years." "Time flies. And why have you never called to see me?" "My dear, just look at the weather we've been having."

THE MAN ABOUT TOWN

About six weeks now before our next holiday, October 12, Columbus day, is the next red letter date on the calendar with Thanksgiving following close behind. Soon the frost will be on the pumpkin and the fodder in the stack. Somehow the seasons seem to be a bit twisted, judging by the weather, but as we look upon our empty pantries we can't help but scrutinize the overcoat and blanket ads in our daily papers.

Daily as I pass the office of one local coal company in the downtown district I come with aching eyes on the big lump of coal displayed in the street window. Would that I had a dollar for every minute I have spent trying to figure whether it would make a bed and a half or two beds if broken up to egg size.

There was a good deal of merriment created in superior criminal court yesterday morning shortly after the clerk began to call the roll of jurors. There were no responses to the first three names called, and the clerk suggested that the men might be in the corridors. Court officers hurried out, and not only rounded up the three, but 22 others. Even the court attaches laughed at the belated jurymen marched in.

hosts in the visitors. Every convenience was provided and every minute of the visitors' time was taken up. All points of interest were visited and competent guides were furnished upon request. The visitors, and there were well over a thousand of them registered from forty-two states, were extended every courtesy. Mr. Ricard did not forget to host for Lowell while the convention and distributed over 250 chamber of commerce pamphlets containing Lowell data. Delegates from the northern New England states promised in many instances to stop a day in Lowell while en route home and look at the many points of interest in our city. This sort of publicity is the kind Lowell wants and needs. No better advertisement for a town could be asked than that its own folk talk about it with an attitude on the part of Californians has done wonders for that state. A bit of municipal boasting always helps Lowell.

The following beautiful tribute to the late Rev. Francis J. Mullin, was written by Miss Margaret McCluskey of 250 Methuen street in connection with the dedication of the memorial hall of St. Michael's church last Monday: Ring out sweet bell through future years.

Thy earnest, pleading call to prayer! At noon, at noon, at eventide, In wintry weather or in fair, Ring out thy gladness hymn of joy! Toll out thy mellowed song of pain! Thy very heart throbs with our own, In sorrow's loss, or pleasure's gain.

Sweet blessed bell! thy voice today Floats softly through the incensed air, Yet, oh! what hallowed memories stir As hearts and heads are bowed in prayer! For here today as dreams come true, We miss the dreamers brave of old, And miss the dreamers of the future, And miss the dreamers of the gold.

We miss that steadfast, gentle heart Of father, mother, priest, most true, The first dear shepherd of this fold Whose soul the dear God only knew, And him who later came in us, And who every day lives in our hearts, Do we not long to clasp his hand, As we just clasped it yesterday?

So many days we knew our friend And love his noble manly grace, We scarcely dreamed he'd steal away From this, his old accustomed place. But though he's gone, his memory stays, And clings to hearts now strangely still. Then let the sweet bell a prayer today For him whose dream is now fulfilled.

And ring again for dear souls gone, Who worked from 8 to 1, then had dinner—a plain dinner, mark my words; after that an hour's exercise; then—

Though we see them not on this earth again, They wait in the far off skies, Those dear brave friends of our earlier years.

And when death is closing our eyes, May we hear with them, as we'll hear full soon, Ring out from St. Michael's tower, The dear sweet bell that we blessed today: Strike for us eternally's hour.

Are they not quite pleased and happy
Where there's knowledge to be got?
Well, to put it short and snappy,
They are not!

Do they not discover glamor
In the things their schoolbooks teach?
Do they not, in learning grammar,
Sense the magic of our speech?
Do they not with eager yearning
Hurry to the destined spot
Where the lamp of wisdom's burning?
They do not!

Now vacation's silly capers
Have been finished, put away,
Do they not find books and papers
More enthralling every day
Do they not begin perceiving
Just how lucky is their lot
To be studying, achieving?
They do not!

With unwilling feet they're trudging
Back again to enter school,
Which to most of them is drudging
Underneath a tyrant's rule.
It takes many years to tame them
And to show them what is what.
Do I blame them?
I do not!

one of which was mottled with stains that resembled human blood marks. This bundle was found at the river edge about three-fourths of a mile above the Lowell municipal bath house by Motorcycle Officer Charles Hamilton, whose attention to it first was attracted by a Collie dog who was attempting to tear it open, drawn to it possibly by the scent of human flesh. The bundle was made up of white duck cloth, wool on one side, with a depression in one end which might have been made by a human head. Strips of cloth in the interior of the bundle bore discolorations that appeared to be blood stains and the police also found a piece of a Boston newspaper dated February 5, 1922, a torn bit of calendar and a small strip of paper on which was the name and address of a

Lowell man and on the reverse side some figures hardly legible even under a magnifying glass. The name and address of the man would not be disclosed, but a probe was instantly begun.

Until the cloth in the bundle dries thoroughly Medical Examiner M. L. Ailing will not be able to ascertain whether the discolorations upon it are blood stains.

Another find which has been turned over to the police for examination is a piece of cloth, seemingly blood-stained, discovered in the river above the Tyngsboro bridge by Henry E. Gray, a retired letter carrier. He was traveling up river in a boat, accompanied by his dog and the animal's actions led him to the cloth strip which he later turned over to the Tyngsboro officers.

It was the expressed opinion of Capt. David Petrie of the Lowell police today that something will break within a few days in relation to the sale and purchase of the two suitcases already found. He does not believe they came from a local store but feels certain they were purchased either in a city or town in the Merrimack river valley and not far away from this city.

"The suitcases were bought recently," said Capt. Petrie "and for the sole purpose of using them in connection with the disposal of the dismembered body." Capt. Petrie does not believe the suitcases ever were given any use other than to aid in the carrying out of the murder plot.

"Before long the police will find out where the suitcases were purchased," he continued "and then the store in question will be asked to explain why this information was not volunteered the moment their discovery in the river was made known."

The present mystery has recalled to mind the famous Blodwin murder case more than 20 years ago when the body of a young woman was found headless in Chelmsford woods, with the head later being found under a bridge on a farm in the town where Blodwin once was employed.

The head was discovered by a constable who kept his find a secret while in the meantime he attempted to secure the promise of a reward if he should bring the missing head to light.

If memory serves he made an offer to the Boston Globe, but was favored with the following reply: "We are not dealing in heads."

BRUSSELS, Sept. 5.—The "Down and Out" ex-service man is hereafter to enjoy some privileges. The committee on claims of the fourth congress of the inter-allied federation of former combatants has passed a resolution providing that when such men are met by a former comrade they should be directed to the nearest American Legion post, if in the United States, or to the most convenient branch of any veteran's organization, if in Europe. There the unfortunate one will be given money, will receive help in finding a job, and will be provided with the proper credentials to protect himself against imposters.

REGAINS 18 POUNDS LOST WEIGHT Taking WINCARNIS

"I was very sick; lost almost 18 pounds in weight; was extremely weak and nervous, and could not get a single night's sound sleep. I had constant medical attention and the best of wholesome foods, but my condition grew more alarming until I began taking Wincarnis, which helped me from the first few doses."

I have completely regained my former weight and strength, sleep soundly every night, am most hearty and have an abundance of energy. My husband and my mother were so amazed at the effect of Wincarnis in my case that they both began taking it as a tonic. Today, they are just as loud in praise of Wincarnis as I am, and we do wish it were known to every weak, nervous or run-down person."

Sam Jones Enters the Hall of Fame by Pitching a No-Hit No-Run Game

YANKEE TWIRLER JOINS SELECT CIRCLE BY HOLDING ATHLETICS HITLESS AND SCORELESS

An Error By Scott and a Pass to Galloway Allowed Two Men to Reach First—Heilmann Again Takes Lead Among Am. League Batters—Wheat Replaces Hornsby in Nat. League—Giants and Reds Win

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—Sam Jones, the Yankee's solemn ball tosser from Woodstock, Ohio, wrote his name in large letters in the history of baseball yesterday by shutting out the Athletics in Philadelphia without a hit. The Yankees won 2 to 0. An error by Scott on a grounder by Welch in the eighth, and a pass to Galloway in the first detracted but slightly from an otherwise perfect record. Only three men in the history of modern baseball have kept the bases spotless through a whole game. Cy Young, Addie Jos and Charley Robertson.

Heilmann Passes Ruth
Duke Ruth made one hit in four times at bat and resigned the American league leadership in batting to Harry Heilmann, the slugging Detroit outfielder, who smashed out two safeties in three times at bat. Heilmann is now leading with a percentage of .3523 and Ruth trailing with .3316.

Wheat Replaces Hornsby
In the National League, the Brooklyn veteran, replaced Rogers Hornsby of St. Louis as leading batsman. He is leading the Cardinals' stat by two points with a percentage of .351. Hornsby's inability to get a hit in three times at bat yesterday cost him the lead, as Brooklyn did not play.

Giants and Reds Win

The Giants and the Reds both won, playing the same distance apart, three and a half games, but the Pirates, who were beaten by the Reds, went back a full game, now standing two behind the Cincinnati team. The Giants defeated Boston 3 to 2, Scott pitching the shutout and allowing but four hits, against six by Cooney. The Reds triumphed over the Pirates 2 to 1 in a pitching duel.

Senators Beat Red Sox
The Senators took a 3 to 1 victory from the Red Sox in Boston, despite the fact that Fullerton allowed only five hits to Zahner's six.

The Cubs defeated the Cardinals in Chicago 3 to 2. In Detroit the Tigers defeated the White Sox 5 to 2 in an uneventful game in which Barrett hit a homer. The Indians trimmed the Browns 6 to 2 in Cleveland.

Sox of 1919 Game's Greatest Team

"KID" GLEASON

BY BILLY EVANS
CHICAGO, Sept. 5.—The baseball scandal of 1919 will remain with "Kid" Gleason.

The failure of the White Sox of 1923 no doubt has caused the "Kid" to do some reminiscing.

Unquestionably the White Sox of this year are the disappointment of the American league fans. The Sox are a good ball club, a first division team, yet during the greater part of the campaign, the players have been floundering around in the second division, getting nowhere.

Early in the spring while working in New York I happened into Catcher Frank Snyder, and together with Benito, star performer of the New York Giants, the Sox team had just finished a long spring series with the Sox, in which the world champion had been pushed to the limit to get the edge.

"Chicago has a mighty good club and should be up there," was the opinion expressed by the two Giants. What I had seen of the Sox during spring training in the south caused me to entertain a similar opinion. Gleason had a club that would make trouble.

How Collins Views It
Only the other day while talking to Eddie Collins as to the failure of the Sox to be up there, he remarked:

"We have been off on the wrong foot from the very start and have never hit our stride. I am convinced that if we had won the ball games that we deserved to in that first series with Cleveland at the opening of the season it would have made a lot of difference with our club. All year it has been a case of no pitch, one when we hit the ball, and when we got the pitching we failed to hit. That is the answer to all our troubles."

Getting back to Gleason and the scandal of 1919, recently I had the real admittance "Kid" on a trip from Boston to New York. The Sox had been roughly treated by the tail-enders. We had just finished talking about Chicago's future to win, when Gleason with a tone of sorrow in his voice that clearly showed how he felt, remarked:

"If I still had that old gang together we would be winning pennants as easily as we did in 1919. That was a great ball club."

"In my time I have seen a lot of famous teams, the old Baltimore Orioles, the pennant-winning New York Giants, the Chicago Cubs of 1906 to 1910, and Connie Mack's great club of 10 years back, but I will take the White Sox of 1919 in preference to any of them."

"There never was a better fielder than Felsch, and I am not excepting Snyder or any of the other famous guardians of the middle pasture. He could do everything, hit, field, run and throw."

Many a Heartache

"And what a great hitter Joe Jackson was. The big fellow was one of those natural batters who could hit anything and was always a threat at the plate."

"Talk about great left-handed pitchers, I never saw a better one than 'Lefty' Williams. He knew how to pitch and no left-hander ever had more marvelous control."

"Buck Weaver at third was a wonder. He could make seemingly impossible plays look easy, a natural ball player."

"Eddie Cleary was the master pitcher who put some thought back of every ball pitched. At first Gaudin could do everything, well and wisely, at short, while erratic at times, could be just as brilliant."

"Add to these stars Eddie Collins (never was there a better second sacker); Ray Schalk, incomparable as a catcher, and 'Red' Faber, one of the game's best pitchers, and you have the nucleus for a fairly good ball club."

"And having thus spoken the 'Kid' took out a black clay from his vest pocket, lit off the end and started for the smoker. The expression that played over his face made it apparent that the scandal of 1919 had caused him many a heartache and still rankled within him.

Every sport thrives on uncertainty. If everything was always out and dried, if the unexpected never happened, sports would soon lose popular favor.

Golf will always be an interesting sport because of the great uncertainty of the game. Golf champions just get acquainted with their titles when they are dropped into the discard. The making of a new champion always adds a new flavor to the game.

Take, for instance, the recent winning of the national open championship by Bobby Jones of Atlanta. If Gene Sarazen had repeated, the event would have added no enthusiasm to the game. Instead, the winning of the title by Bobby Jones, after he had time and again seemed certain to go over, was a great thing for the novel and ancient pastime.

In tennis for a half dozen years a very few players have monopolized the field, to a certain extent killing interest. Bill Tilden and Bill Johnston have had a decided edge in the masculine end of the game, while Mrs. Mahory has been even more dominant among the women players of the United States.

The recent defeat of Mrs. Mahory by Miss Wills, the 17-year-old school-girl wonder from California, is the finest thing that could have happened to the tennis game. The triumph of Miss Wills, a colorful miss who has been coming fast for two or three years, will tend to stimulate interest in tennis, particularly among the women players. The unexpected defeat of Mrs. Mahory simply proves that no player in any sport, however great, is invincible.

Baseball thrives on uncertainty. This is why for six months it can draw big crowds. Championship rights at stated intervals go big. In the fall, important football games played once a week, draw out the sports lovers. The big tournaments in golf always excite the populace. But after all no sport has the direct appeal of baseball, because no other sport is played every day for six months.

I have seen a number of unexpected happenings in baseball this year. Recently, Washington invaded Cleveland for a five-game series. The Washington club had an outfielder on first, a catcher at third, the manager of the club, who has been retired from active play, at second, and an entire pitching staff injured had rendered the Washington club a mild aggregation. It looked like a soft series for Cleveland, four out of five sure and possibly a clean sweep of the series. Cleveland took the first game, then dropped the next four. That must aggregation played like world champions.

Recently I worked a double-header at the Yankee Stadium in New York with the Detroit club. New York won the first game 10 to 4. A crowd of 60,000 was in attendance. When New York came to bat in the last half of the ninth of the second game, the score was 7 to 3 in favor of Detroit. The first two men were retired. Thomsen had filed out of the park as the final inning was being played. With two strikes on Ruth the game seemed over. Babe hit a home run on the next ball pitched. Elmer Smith, the next batter, hit the sec-

DUNDEE PEEVED, SAYS HE CLAIMS TITLE

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—The lightweight championship match scheduled for tonight at the Yankee stadium between Benny Leonard, titleholder, and Johnny Dundee, featherweight, king and challenger, has been postponed indefinitely, Jimmy Johnston matchmaker of the Crouse-Hollister Co., announced yesterday, because of Dundee's poor physical condition.

Dundee, when informed of Johnston's announcement, said he would claim the lightweight championship of the world. "I will not agree to a postponement," he said. "If Leonard does not fight I'll claim the title and put it up to the New York commission."

"Leonard wanted the fight postponed because he found he couldn't make the weight, and wanted more time to reduce. I was never in better condition. There is nothing the matter with my hands, and there never has been. I am ready to fight and Leonard is not."

FOOTBALL

Dear Sporting Editor:

Will you please publish the following:

The Ponies football team will play their first game of the season next Sunday, with the Rovers the opposing team. Both teams have been through stiff workouts and are fully prepared for the battle. Through rivalry existing from last year, when the Rovers defeated the Ponies, a great game is expected.

The Ponies issue a challenge to any and all teams whose weight is 150. We would like to hear from the St. Patrick's Junior Holy Name or St. Peter's Cadets. For names call 1753-M, Eddie Leavitt, between 2 and 3 o'clock.

The Ponies will practice every night this week at 6:15 and the following are asked to report: McGowan, Cashmere, Gardiner, Martin, Burke, Leavitt, Clancy, Curley, Knight, Taplan, Nerrey, Curley, Riley, McDonald, Mullerkey, D. Mullerkey, W. and Irwin.

We thank you.

EDWARD R. LEAVITT.

Business Manager.

KENWOOD ROVERS

The Kenwood Rovers have organized for the 1923 football season and are out to play some of the fastest teams in the city. If the managers of the following teams will notify Captain Hayward as soon as they are organized, they will be placed on the Rovers' schedule. Wanderers, Indian Seconds, Shurt's Nobles, Ponies, Billerica, Wildcats, St. Peter's Cadets and the St. Patrick's Junior Holy Name.

The Rovers will pick their team from the following men: Joe Murphy, C. Hayward, S. Martell, M. Gagny, M. Calkins, C. Murphy, E. Minton, T. Latham, J. Callahan, D. Callahan, R. Corbett, J. Corbett, J. Cassey, J. Vinal, J. Skidels, E. Parent.

Sunday, September 9, the Rovers will open their season with a game on the Lakeview avenue ball grounds where they will line up against the strong Ponies eleven. The Rovers are confident of repeating last year's performance when they beat the Ponies 19-6.

The manager of the Rovers wishes to announce that if the crowd is not kept off the field of play, the game will be stopped until the field is clear. The crowd greatly hampered the open field work of the Rovers in the last contest held on the Ponies' grounds.

and ball pitched for a home run. Papp singled and Ward got on through an infield error. Ernie Johnson sent in as a pinch hitter, doubled and the score was tied. New York went out in the next inning. No game ever demonstrated the uncertainty of baseball more than that one.

DEMPSEY BEGINS FINAL SPURT

Champion in Superb Physical and Mental Condition for Firpo Bout

Going Into Fight to Trade Punches Until Something Drops, He Declares

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Sept. 5.—(By the Associated Press)—Jack Dempsey starts his final work of training today in preparation for the defense of his world's heavyweight championship against Luis Angel Firpo, the Polo grounds a week from Friday night.

Dempsey plans to work with the mauling, hard-hitting heavyweights for the balance of the week, and then switch to light sparring partners to put him on edge.

Refreshed by his layoff yesterday, Dempsey in the opinion of his handlers, is in superb physical and mental condition for the final spurt of his training campaign.

Yesterday the champion, willingly talked about the impending contest. He declared he was going to be ready for whatever might happen when he faces the South American.

"I get all sorts of advice about Firpo," Dempsey said. "I don't care if they say he's tough or soft, I'm going to be ready. A fellow can't take any chances with a guy that can sock. I'm going into the fight to trade punches until something drops. And I hope that something won't be me."

"I expect that Firpo will pull everything he can, I'm going to do the same thing. I'm not going to wait until he hits me—not if I can sock him first."

How Firpo Beat Brennan

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—(By the Associated Press)—Luis Angel Firpo, who meets Jack Dempsey September 14 for the world's heavyweight title, fought the first major battle of his career, Madison Square Garden last March against Bill Brennan, Chicago veteran. Firpo won by a knockout in the twelfth round, after Brennan had been knocked out by a series of punches.

The story of the twelfth round: "Firpo rushed from his corner and landed three smashing rights to the head. Brennan whipped a right upper cut and followed with right and left to the body. Firpo forced the Chicagoan back with two hard rights to the head, quickly to send an approaching victory Firpo tore loose a battery of rights and lefts to the head and body. Brennan tried to duck out of his adversary's reach, but was caught with a right swing to the jaw. The South American leaped in and again swung his right, landing behind the ear, and Brennan went down for the count."

Firpo is Confident

ATLANTIC CITY, Sept. 5.—(By the Associated Press)—Luis Angel Firpo believes that his queer ring style will be more valuable to him against Jack Dempsey than all the American pugilistic tricks he could learn.

The South American's sparring partners are authority for the statement that one can never tell what the Angel is going to do next.

"He doesn't box well and seems awkward," they say. "Yet he keeps a few low guesses. Sometimes it looks like his right is getting ready to swing and then the left shoots out, and vice versa."

Don Clarke, the Joplin Ghost, one of the shiftest veterans of the game, says Firpo is the "foolishest man" he ever stepped around with.

"I boxed Dempsey and I loved all the good guys, but his old boy can do anything," said Don Clarke. "He's a real fighter, but he's a little slow."

WOMEN'S GOLF TITLE

MONTREAL, Sept. 5.—One of the strongest international fields in the history of the event will compete for the Canadian women's golf championship here beginning September 17.

The American entries include Miss Glavin, Collet, of Peabody, national title holder, Miss Anna Stirling, of New York, and Mrs. Dorothy Sampson, of Boston, former holder of both the American and Canadian championships. England will be represented by Mrs. A. A. Gwyn, Mrs. Alan Macbeth and Miss Edith Leitch.

AMERICANS TO PLAY PICK OF TWO LEAGUE TOMORROW NIGHT IN GAME FOR BENEFIT OF SULLIVAN FUND

The Lowell Americans, champions of the City Twirlers league, which closed a most successful season on Labor day, will meet a picked team from the other three leagues of the league on the South common tomorrow night for the benefit of the Henry Sullivan reception fund.

The suggestion to play this game was presented and accepted at a meeting of the league directors and managers held at the Crescent alloys last night. The game was conveyed to James J. Reilly, chairman of the Sullivan reception committee, and he expressed his approval and assured the league officials of complete co-operation.

The entire proceeds will be turned over to the reception committee. Collectors representing these preparing for the "red cross home" to Lowell's famous aquatic star who conquered the treacherous waters of the English channel, will be on hand to pass among the crowd, and it is hoped that the fans will loosen their purse strings and contribute generously to the good cause.

Other business transacted at last night's meeting was the completion of plans for a banquet to be held at Marie's restaurant on next Tuesday evening to celebrate the completion of the successful season. The players on the four contending teams, the umpires, and officials and several invited guests are expected to attend.

Mrs. Hagen Following in Walter's Wake

BY ROY GROVE
N.E.A. Service Writer

SHAKER HEIGHTS, O., Sept. 5.—Walter Hagen, the world's greatest golfing professional, has but one pupil—we hesitate here in mentioning of the golfing widow because that one pupil is his wife.

Mrs. Hagen is being carefully groomed by the master of the putt, and, in due time, will be able to pace around with the best of them, on her way to the woman's national title.

"Mrs. Hagen is one of the best pupils I have ever taught," says Walter. "I don't say that because she is my wife, but because she is a natural. I love to watch her game as well as the other people."

Not alone that, but Mrs. Hagen is a sort of barometer to the spectators. At the various holes she will start down the fairway and stop at a point where she judges Walter will drive his ball, and nine times out of ten she is right.

Mrs. Hagen knows his game as well as he does. By following her around closely in these rounds you will see the great Mr. Hagen on every play.

The writer accompanied her over the links at the Shaker Heights Country club during the Professional Golfing Association's qualifying rounds.

Walter broke the course record with a 65.

READY FOR FALL SEASON AT THE Y. W. C. A.

Vacations over, the lure of the beaches and the mountains less enticing, work for fall and winter is being turned to with fresh energy by the various workers at the Y. W. C. A.

Miss Lucille Shirley, girls' work secretary, and Miss Fern Graden, executive at the International Institute, have returned from an automobile tour through the south and resumed their old duties. They report a fine trip to Miss Shirley's home at Columbia, S. C., and on their return covered the 1240 miles in four days. Miss Shirley drove during the entire trip.

Miss Valerie Riebert, Polish worker at the International Institute spent her summer vacation at her Michigan home and has entered her old duties with new zeal.

One new worker has been added to the staff at the International Institute in Palmer street, succeeding Mrs. Helen Gustafson who recently resigned in order that she might have more time to devote to her health and family. Mrs. Gustafson has gone to California and will make her home there.

The new worker is Miss Constantine Coutechoucas of Manchester, N. H., who came to this country from Greece when but four years old. She is a graduate of Manchester high school and matriculated at the New Hampshire State college there, receiving her B. A. degree there. Miss Coutechoucas' parents were the first Greeks to settle in Manchester, in which city there is now a thriving colony to which large numbers are continually being added.

Miss Coutechoucas speaks English, Greek and French fluently. During the World war she served as an interpreter with the United States Food Administration.

Must a player's ball lie on the green in order for him to have the right to remove some loose impediment that is on the green and which he feels may affect his next shot, possibly prevent him from holing out?

A player has the right to remove loose impediment from the putting green even though his ball does not lie on the green. The rule states that the player has such a right, irrespective of the position of the player's ball. Which would mean that it doesn't matter whether the ball is on the putting green, through the green or in a hazard.

Smith and Jones are playing a handicap match in which Smith is giving Jones a stroke a hole. On a certain hole they both score a 6. Deducting the stroke that Smith is giving him, Jones has a 5 for the hole. Smith had the honor at the hole in question. Does he retain the honor since both had a 6, or does the fact that Jones has his handicap stroke, had a 5, entitle him to the honor at the next hole?

Jones has the honor at the next hole. The fact that both players made a 6 is given no consideration. Jones, by deducting his stroke allowance, won the hole with a 5 and is entitled to the honor at the next hole.

When a ball is hit by an opponent's ball on the fairway must the ball be dropped or replaced as near as possible to its original position?

It must be dropped. Balls can only be placed on the putting green.

Puzzling Plays by Billy Evans

There is a runner on first base. The batsman to the shortstop. The hit and run play is on. The shortstop fumbles the ball slightly, and realizing he has no chance to get the runner out, second cuts loose a hurried throw to first to get the batsman.

The throw is wild and gets away from the first baseman, and the base umpire believes that it has gone into the player's bench, which according to the ground rule entitles the runners to advance two bases.

The runner from first slid hard into second and slightly injured his ankle. He made no attempt to go to third on getting to his feet. The base umpire waved him over to third and he started to jog to that base.

The catcher of the team in the field recovered the ball and threw the ball to the third baseman, who touched on the runner coming into third. The ball did not get into the player's bench. The umpire back of the plate so ruled.

What about this play?

The interpretation. The mistake in this case must be charged against the umpire. He made no attempt to get the ball had come into the bench, waved the runner, who had stopped at second to advance to third.

The player, in following the dictates of the umpire, is touched with the ball and apparently retired. Common sense advanced because the umpire ordered him, there is no reason why he should suffer because the ball didn't go into the bench. The umpire should have sent the runner back to second.

"Teddy" is a big St. Bernard, the last dog in the world you'd expect to find "fathering" a lot of kittens. But during a recent cloudburst in Pittsburg the kittens and a mother cat belonging to Dr. J. Since then the mother cat and the kittens have complete confidence in the big dog. "Teddy" likes to pick the little bundles of fur by the neck and carry them about.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

STRAND THEATRE

A picturesque and exciting romance of the south seas is promised at the Strand for the last three days of the week, beginning with the matinee on Thursday. In "Goldwyn's 'Lost and Found,' written by Carey Wilson of Goldwyn's editorial department and directed by R. A. Walsh. The action takes place in Tahiti where the Goldwyn concern sent a boat load of actors and equipment and featured prominently is the old slave trader with House of Representatives in blacked.

As a second feature for the week-end booking, the management has secured "Scars of Jealousy," a fairly good drama of the south, with an unusual but not very convincing twist. The scenario is by a southern planter in the hero and his entertainment of a cheap burlesque troupe is the last straw when the father returns home unexpectedly. The father discovers the boy and adopts an illegitimate orphan mountain boy. The development of the plot is a work of art and it is one that will appeal widely.

"Lost and Found" is the only photograph for which the entire cast was sent to the south seas location. All of the scenes, with the exception of some of the interiors, were photographed in Tahiti and on board a ship specially chartered for that purpose. Director Walsh had several big mob scenes in which thousands of natives took part and he succeeded in getting some of the most thrilling mob scenes ever filmed.

The story concerns a wealthy planter named Cochran whose wife deserted him for the island governor and who takes her eldest daughter Lorna, leaving the baby Marge. The latter is crippled as the result of an accident due to the mother's haste to leave and Cochran becomes embittered against all women and takes to the seas as Captain Blackbird. Years later the woman and her daughter are deserted by the governor and the captain comes in contact with his daughter without knowing who she is. He forces her to marry a scoundrel of a mate and when he learns of her identity he tries to take her back. A terrific fight ensues in which the natives take part and it is interesting to see how it comes out. See for yourself.

Today is the last showing of Richard Barthelmess in "The Bright Shawl." This picture has a run of four days at the Strand and capacity audiences will testify to its excellence. Roy Stewart in "The Love Brand" completes the bill.

Local movie fans will rejoice at the announcement that dubby Bessie Love has returned to movieland and can be seen at the Rialto in her very latest photoplay "The Purple Dawn," which is the chief attraction there Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

"The Purple Dawn" is a story of the underworld and Chinatown. Miss Love is seen in the role of a little Chinese girl, Mei Fan. Her foster mother possesses her in marriage, according to the old Chinese custom, to Quan Foo, a wealthy merchant. But she, born and bred in America, resists this fate and prays to be allowed to choose her own mate according to the American custom. Miss Love has never had a part so suited to her wisest and charming personality. As the little white flower of the Orient, she expresses appealingly the varied emotions of fear, courage, hate and love, despair and exaltation.

Since the Volskel act there has been an alarming increase in the consumption of narcotics, and in spite of the vigilance of the government, tremendous quantities of lethal drugs is under their very noses. How this illicit traffic is carried on is shown in "The Purple Dawn." The supporting cast includes: Patricia Rogers, Edward Bell, J. D. Corda and Wm. E. Aldrich.

The companion feature is "The Little Church Around the Corner," a Warner Brothers classic with Kenneth Harlan, Claire Windsor, Robert Rosow, Arthur Hays Sulzberger, Walter Loma, Alexander Dumas and "The Purple Dawn." The theme of the story deals with the fact that there's a little church in every man's heart. One of the many highlights in the classic is declared to be a scintillating scene which were constructed at the Warner studios in Los Angeles.

As an extra added attraction the management has secured for showing in this program "Red Russia Revealed," an authentic William Fox two reel educational film of conditions as they actually are in Soviet Russia. The Fox cameramen by hard and steady work have secured some intimate close-ups of Lenin and Trotsky the Russian leaders and also depict the social and economic conditions of Red Russia. If you would learn the truth and see for yourself and if you are interested in the fate of Russia, one of the world's greatest governments, you will more than enjoy "Red Russia Revealed."

A Bull Montana, handsomest of screen comedians, is also on the bill in "A Punctured Prince."

SCOTT BROTHERS BACK

Return From Two Months' Vacation Tour Spent in Great Britain and Ireland

Samuel Scott returned to his home, 220 Appleton street, Sunday at the end of a two months' vacation tour through Great Britain and Ireland and the Dominion of Canada. He was accompanied on his trip by his brother, John Scott, of 32 Stevens street.

The Scotts sailed on the maiden trip of the Leviathan under the United States Shipping board pennant, leaving New York harbor on July 4. They returned to Montreal last week on the "Marlock" of the Canadian Pacific line, spending a few days in Montreal. They planned to sail from Glasgow on Aug. 11 but were delayed four days before the big ship was released from drydock.

From Montreal the pair visited at Barnet, Vermont, where Mrs. Samuel Scott and children are spending the summer. On Sunday they started for Lowell, arriving in the early evening. Samuel Scott was back at his desk in his Middlesex street tobacco warehouse this morning busy with an accumulation of business matters. He was glad however, to spare a few minutes to speak of the trip over which he said both he and his brother were highly elated.

Mr. Scott has been a resident of Lowell for 41 years. He visited relatives in Ireland, Scotland and England 11 years later and this was his first visit since that occasion. His brother John came here 41 years ago and this was his first trip back home.

Speaking of his observations Mr. Scott said the employment situation throughout England and Scotland is distressingly acute. Idle men by the thousands are to be seen in both countries, he said, and in the great Clyde shipbuilding district not the sound of a single hammer could be heard ringing upon the air.

Ireland he found quiet and suspicious. "The smiles of welcome at every hand so noticeable 30 years ago were not to be seen," said Mr. Scott. "We and all tourists were looked upon with more or less suspicion. The ravages of internal strife are everywhere to be seen. Trenches mark the various roads and boundaries. The great Four Courts edifice in Dublin, the post office, the custom house and other fine structures are wrecked. It was rather a poor place for enjoyment."

Scotland received the greater part of the traveler's attention. Mr. Scott is a great admirer of Bobbie Burns and with his brother made a special pilgrimage to the birthplace of the great poet. Mr. Scott is proud of the fact that he is one of the few American Mayors who have stood within the hall in which Bobbie Burns was raised to Masonry. Many have viewed the hall from without but by a stroke of rare fortune he was permitted to enter.

This hall is located in the Tullibole section of Scotland and is privately owned. Mr. Scott formed an acquaintance with the owner and made known his desire to enter the hall. The owner readily acquiesced and accompanied him on the visit.

Edinburgh and other points of interest were visited by the travelers who found a most cordial reception awaiting them wherever they chanced to stay.

On the return trip Mr. Scott said more than 1000 men, ranging in age from 18 to 55, were passengers. They were bound for the Canadian harvest fields. In all 10,000 young men were leaving the old country for Canada to help in the harvest.

In Chicago's high schools there are many beauties. Prettier than any, according to a committee of judges, is Miss Ruth Schreiber, 17. She was selected over hundreds of other schoolgirls in a high school contest.

Daughter of Hollingsworth Killed by Bear

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 4.—Five year old Thelma Hollingsworth, daughter of Dick Hollingsworth, magazine editor, visiting a motion picture studio here yesterday, persuaded an attendant to admit her to that part of the lot where wild animal "actors" awaited their turn in front of the camera. She died today of a basal skull fracture suffered when a half grown bear struck her with its paw.

"Dr. King, I Want Teeth I Can Eat With"

A man came into this office some time ago and made the above statement. He said he had two sets of teeth and could not eat with either of them. I made him a set and he came into the office later and said they were the only ones he could keep in his mouth while eating. In fact he could chew peanuts and eat apples without the least trouble.

The reason for this is my particular method of taking impressions study of the shape and relation of the jaws and correct articulation of the teeth.

The daily job of 20 million mothers—

To send them off every morning in their fresh, clean school clothes

TO SEND them off to school all freshly washed and starched! How proudly American mothers watch them march off in the early morning!

But with what sinking hearts mothers see them tear home looking like little urchins. They seem to have a genius for picking the very dirtiest dirt to play in.

And those blouses, those trousers, those darling little dresses that were so immaculate a few short hours ago! Smudged and bedraggled, with the dirt so ground in, you wonder if it will ever come out.

Dirty school clothes need no longer discourage you. It is such an easy, simple matter now to have fresh ones every day. For washing them is no job at all if you do it with Rinso.

This new soap loosens the dirt just by soaking. It dissolves instantly in boiling water, making a rich, pure, cleansing suds, so soapy it gets the dirt out without any hard rubbing. Even the dirt that gets absolutely ground in at little knees and elbows is so loosened by soaking in Rinso suds, that it comes out with only a light rubbing. Do that little rubbing with Rinso. Just sprinkle some dry on the worst spots and they will disappear.

You do not have to change your way of washing. Just use Rinso wherever you used to use bar soap.

Made by the makers of Lux

Rinso is made by the world's largest soap makers—the makers of Lux. For the family wash it is as wonderful as Lux is for fine things. You need no soap powder or any other soap with Rinso. It does the whole job.

Don't ever again wear yourself out rubbing dirty school clothes. Save those backbreaking hours of rubbing and save the clothes by using Rinso.

Begin today! Get either the regular sized package or the big new package at any grocery or department store. Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass.

STILL CONSIDER PEACE OFFER

Gov. Pinchot to Meet Leaders
in Coal Controversy in
Executive Session

Issues Between Operators
and Anthracite Miners Will
Be Canvassed Again

HARRISBURG, Pa., Sept. 5.—(By the Associated Press) Issues between mine operators and the miners' union in the anthracite region will be canvassed again today before Governor Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, by representatives of both sides. Peace proposals which the governor advanced to avert the suspension are still under consideration although attitudes of both the employees' group and the union leaders were today still holding them far away from an agreement.

Although the governor has suggested that a 10 per cent wage increase be given the miners that all but eight hour employment be eliminated, that the union be recognized and given opportunity to collect dues in company offices, and that collective bargaining principles be followed in the industry's relationship between employer and employee the program had not won acceptance when the meeting began today.

Anthracite operators indicated it would be only accepted on condition that the contract made with the union and incorporating the provisions named be fixed to run a term of years, with annual wage revisions controlled by arbitration. The union, on the other hand, is in opposition to arbitration, has asked a greater percentage of interest in wages of all day workers in the field and has, while tendering renewed negotiations, stood by its other demands, including that for "check-off" collection of union dues.

TEACHERS OF SEWING

Those Employed on Playgrounds Worked Hard for
Pageant

Owing to the historic pageant held this year as the closing feature of the public playgrounds, the usual exhibition of the work done under the supervision of the sewing teachers was omitted. But the work this year was a great improvement upon that of past years. The costumes used in the closing pageant were supposed to be made by the pupils who were them, but many of these who appeared in the dances did not take any lessons in sewing. The fact was that a very large portion of the work was done by the sewing teachers, and most of them worked for several nights preceding the event, till after midnight, getting the costumes ready. Not only this, but several of them had to call in their friends to assist them in order to have all the details of the work completed on time.

They played a very important part in making the pageant a success although in the distribution of the credit for the event, they seemed to be forgotten. The sewing teachers with the schools and playgrounds they attend were as follows: Margaret A. McGinn, Butler and Richmond avenue playground; Molly Bourke, Moody school, Payette street playground; Miss May Sullivan, Greenhale and State park; Margaret Riley, Varnum school and South common; Margaret Turcotte, South common and Allen street; Lillian Chisholm, Pawtucketville and Lincoln schools; Mrs. Grant, Franklin and Bartlett schools; Ella Mulcahy, Morey school and Middlesex village; Rose Ward, North common.

LOCAL LEGIONAIRES GO TO MARBLEHEAD

Nine delegates of Lowell Post left the city today for Marblehead to attend the annual state convention of the American Legion. Commander Jas. A. Molloy heads the delegation. Other members are Stephen C. Garrity, Joseph Dineen, Colin C. McDonald, J. Henry Gilbride, Stephen Kearney, John P. O'Grady, William J. White and John J. Walsh.

Following the regular meeting of the post last night at Memorial auditorium a conference of the delegates took place and it was decided to enter in caucus upon arrival with the various other posts of Middlesex county. The Lowell delegation goes to the convention unpledged. A boom for Joseph M. Dineen for state treasurer will be started however, and the Lowell boys have to put him across. Mr. Dineen has served very acceptably as post treasurer for three years and is intensely popular.

Walsh Wants Re-election
John J. Walsh of Lowell, who has served two years as state historian, is also out for re-election and will have the backing of his post. From indications at last night's meeting, it appears that the present state administration does not stand in any too well with the local legionaires and support of a new ticket headed by General Edwards is quite probable.

Mayor Donovan has authorized all municipal departments to give leave of absence over the convention to all employees who are to attend the convention as delegates or alternates.

The Marblehead Program
For nearly a year, the Marblehead Legion, the town authorities, business men, and townspeople at large have been working with remarkable co-operation to make the convention a credit to the legion and to Marblehead, and success seems sure to crown their efforts.

WILL MEET TO DISCUSS A WAITING ROOM

The office of the Courier-Citizen Co. at Kearney square, to be vacated when the company moves into its new home in the old Prescott mill storehouse, may be converted into a waiting room for the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway Co.

The leasing over of the street floor of the Courier-Citizen Co. will be the topic of discussion at a conference between officials of the railway company and members of the railroad committee of the city council to be held late this afternoon.

President Gallagher of the city council will advocate the leasing of that office by the company for a waiting room on the grounds that it would serve the purpose in every way, as the floor space is large enough and then again the waiting room at that spot would accommodate all patrons of the electric cars, inasmuch as it has entrances on both Merrimack and Paige streets.

Reservation has been made for Edward J. Ivers, Chief de Chemie, de Fer de la Societe des Quarante Hommes et huit Chevoaux, a legion organization which might be correspondingly compared to the shrine in Masey.

The navy department has been most generous in assignment of its fleet, and co-operation in the various events of the program. Orders have been issued, which will bring to Marblehead, the battleship Florida and Delaware, a division of destroyers, the submarine tender (Hushe) and her division of submarines, and probably the new airplane carrier Langley. The war department and the Massachusetts National Guard have also done much to assist the program, including the assignment of the entire 101st Engineers regiment to participate in the parade and sham battle.

40 and 8 in Session
Members of La Societe des 40 Hommes et 8 Chevoaux will meet at Allot hall for a business session on Thursday evening and will hold a public initiation at the same place on the following evening.

HEAVY FINES IMPOSED CHARGE FOR SWITCHING CUT

District Court Deals Drastically With Intoxicated
Motor Vehicle Operators

Joseph Souza, arrested in Billerica on August 23 for drunkenness, operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor and driving without a license, was fined $100 in district court this morning for operating while drunk and an additional $20 for driving without a license. The drunkenness charge was filed. Defendant was arrested by Officer Adams, who testified that he had to lift him out of the machine.

Souza's case was one of three automobile cases disposed of this morning. Oscar Lamy was found guilty of drunkenness and operating while under the influence and paid a fine of $100.
Walery Gorzyca, was arrested by Officer Thomas Maroney in Kearney square last night. He was driving an automobile in the direction of Prescott street when the officer noticed the absence of lights on his machine. He signalled the operator to stop and asked him if he was aware of anything amiss with his machine. Gorzyca got out to investigate and fell from the running board into the officer's arms.

He was fined $100 for operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor.

Breaking and entering and larceny charges preferred against Joseph Charles O'Leary, testified that he found defendant in the tenement of Pnagottis Klopis in Adams street on the evening of August 28. A watch and other jewelry amounting to $51 was taken from the premises. Casale pleaded guilty and was fined $100.

Richard Raymond, 27, was charged with non-support by his 16-year-old wife, who said he gave her $1.50 last week, bought bread for her once in a while and told her if she didn't like it, she could get out of the house. Last Saturday, a finding of guilty was returned and Raymond was given a suspended sentence of five months in the house of correction, which will be carried out if defendant does not pay $10 weekly in his wife's support.

A non-support charge against Leo J. Lemire brought a finding of guilty and a sentence of six months in the house of correction, suspended for a year.

Alfred Duquette was fined $50 for a statutory offence. A request for time in which to pay the fine was denied. A fine of $10 was imposed on William J. Briere for drunkenness, while for a similar charge, Stanley Kaczmarek was given a suspended sentence of four months to the house of correction. Continuances were granted Stephen Agostovitch, Weston Wankewich and Paul Taylor, all charged with drunkenness.

A Cheshire street riot cost Martin Zukowski $20, when he was fined that amount for assault and battery. Testimony of several witnesses showed that he struck a neighbor without provocation and attempted to do bodily injury with a heavy fist.

James McQuinn was continued until September 19. He is charged with maintaining a liquor nuisance.

New Haven Road Lightens Tariff on Coal From Providence to Lowell

Discontinuance of 60 Cent
Charge Brought About by
Chamber of Commerce

The switching charge of sixty cents per ton on coal shipped to Lowell from Providence will be discontinued after today by the New Haven railroad.

As the result of efforts of the Lowell chamber of commerce, the railroad has agreed to absorb the charge in the belief that this concession will in the end prove more profitable to the road. This step puts the New Haven on a competitive basis with the Boston & Maine Boston to Lowell. The New Haven's charge, net gross ton from Providence here, switching charges omitted, will be $1.45. The difference of 18 cents apparent there is neutralized by the same actual difference in the water rate charge to the two ports.

To the ultimate consumer the concession means little at first glance, as it will have no effect on the price of coal and will not serve to lower it one penny. However, to coal dealers and industries this is a great boon. They may now have coal consigned to them at either port at the same cost and by careful planning always avoid the more congested terminal. This assures better deliveries.

Officials of the New Haven feel confident that by their action in absorbing the switching charge the increase in shipments will more than offset the switching charge loss. The new ruling applies to both anthracite and bituminous coal.

LOWELL MAN AT HEAD OF NEW COMPANY

Edmund M. Cluin, son of John J. Cluin, Palmer street optometrist, is to be general manager of the Hydro Manufacturing Co., a $50,000 concern which is expected to file incorporation papers at the state house within a few days. The new concern is to be backed wholly by Lowell capital.

The manufacture of toys and novelties for the trade will be the chief interest of the new corporation. Definite decision has not been reached as to where the plant will locate or how many hands will be employed. Sites in Lowell and in Reading are at present under consideration.

Reduce the Skidding Danger

BUICK 4-WHEEL BRAKES

BUICK four-wheel brakes reduce to a minimum the skidding danger every driver encounters on wet pavements.

The action of the simple yet positive Buick brakes not only slows down the car safely but keeps it steady, preventing skidding to either side.

Buick four-wheel brakes operate with slight pressure on the service brake pedal, are of the Buick-proved external contracting type and function independently of the emergency brake.

Buick has taken this advanced step of designing four-wheel brakes on its 1924 cars in conformance with its well-known policy of providing owners with the safest and most dependable transportation.

We will be pleased to give you a demonstration and let you prove the effectiveness of Buick four-wheel brakes yourself.

Pioneers of Industry

PIONEERS, who founded America's foremost industries, were invariably reformers of business methods.

Ever since its incorporation, the American Woolen Company has striven to improve the methods of manufacture. In its sixty mills are installed the most efficient textile machinery and every device known to save time, labor and inconvenience for the workers. Here, more than 35,000 skilled employees are producing more than 30,000 weaves and patterns of woolen and worsted fabrics which are distributed to every civilized country.

It can be truthfully maintained that this spirit of co-operation and honest endeavor have helped to elevate the standards of the woolen industry which will accrue to the benefit of all makers and users of clothing.

CITY COUNCIL VOTES TO SEIZE LAND AT JUNCTION OF HALL AND AIKEN STREETS

The regular meeting of the city council last night was given over largely to the disposition of routine business of which there was a considerable accumulation.

Only two matters outside of the routine sphere were discussed, one being the acquisition of land at the junction of Hall and Aiken streets for the purpose of widening that dangerous corner, and the other being an unsuccessful attempt to take from the title an improper nomination of Joseph Payette to succeed Albert Bergeron as a member of the budget and audit commission.

It was the unanimous vote of the body that the city proceed in the Hall and Aiken street matter along the line of seizure, all efforts to come to a satisfactory agreement having failed. Property to be seized is owned by Mrs. Marshall and Beale, Transfer of Lawrence and one corner and the Lawrence and Beale on the other.

The effort to force action on the Payette nomination was sponsored by Councilor McFadden, but only five favorable votes could be mustered.

Meeting in Detail
When Pres. Gallagher called the council to order at 8:15 o'clock, eleven members were in the chamber. Councilors McFadden, Stearns, Hennessy and Chubb were absent.

A hearing was held on the petition of Max L. Kozel to lay a street, called Middlesex street, between the Hamilton mill and Old Fellows building.

A communication from City Solicitor J. J. Reynolds expressed the opinion that the council has authority to grant such a petition if it so desires. He suggested, however, that the petitioners furnish an indemnity bond before work begins.

Mr. Kozel spoke in favor. There were no remonstrances. On motion of Councilor Sullivan, the council voted to draw up all necessary orders.

Councilor Hennessy opened the chamber at this juncture. He was followed by Councilors Chubb and Stearns. The next matter taken up was a petition of Jeanne Bonstien to change the name of Forest street to Summit avenue. The council took the matter under advisement.

There were two remonstrances to a petition of Elizabeth Milroy for the creation of a public square in Livingston street. Councilor Sullivan explained the situation in regard to property lines in the neighborhood. The matter was referred to the inspector of public buildings.

Several other petitions on which there were no public or remonstrances went to hearing and passed through the regular channels. A suggestion for the maintenance of a street car waiting room in the vicinity of Kearney square resulted in a lengthy and general discussion of street railway affairs on the Lowell division.

Councilor McFadden moved that the mayor's nomination of Joseph Payette for a place on the budget and audit commission be taken from the table. By an 8 to 5 vote the motion was lost.

The report of the license commission for the quarter ending May 31, was accepted and placed on file. Councilor Lambers spoke of instances of delay on the part of the N. E. Tel. Co. and the Lowell Electric Light Corp. in the installation of street lighting poles. He felt some remedy should be prescribed.

President Gallagher suggested that any specific instances should be investigated and discussed with the particular public service corporation involved. St. John's hospital formally withdrew its petition asking that a portion of Sprague street be closed, and it was so voted.

Boldue were married Monday afternoon at St. Joseph's rectory, the ceremony being performed by Rev. L. G. Backlund, O.M.I. The witnesses were Messrs. Arthur and Joseph Boldue. The couple will make their home in this city.

Nichols—Hing
A wedding of unusual interest to many people of this city took place at 5:30 o'clock Monday evening, when Rev. Reginald Burton Nichols, pastor of the Central Methodist Episcopal church of Lowell, and Miss Myrtle Evelyn Hing, were united in marriage at the home of the bride's parents, 35 E. Street, by John L. Cairns, master of St. Paul's M. E. church, officiating. The bride and groom were attended by George H. Hing of Medford, twin sister of the bride, as patron of honor, and Rev. Andrew F. Scamro as best man. Miss Virginia Hing, younger sister of the bride, was flower girl.

The bride wore a gown of bat crepe with a wreath of orange blossoms and a trailing of pearls, the latter the gift of the bridegroom. She carried a bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley. The groom wore a tuxedo and carried a boutonniere. The ceremony was performed at a nuptial mass celebrated at 8 o'clock by Rev. J. B. Tanquary. During the mass hymns were sung by Miss Loretta Bernier, Miss Laura Bernier, Miss Irene Bernier, Miss Ida Bernier, and Miss Loretta Bernier. The bride and groom were attended by Mrs. Charles Guilmond, while the best man was Mr. Andrew Caron, Jr. After the ceremony a reception was given at the home of the bride's parents, 35 E. Street. The guests were from Salem, Medford, Beverly, and Lowell. After an extended honeymoon trip to Salisbury and Old Orchard beaches, the couple will make their home in Cambridgeport.

Lowell bar," said the district attorney, "but I cannot allow the court to break down because there are no cases ready for trial. It costs the county $250 per day for the court, and I must see that this money is not wasted."

The first case to go to the jury at the sitting was submitted for deliberation this morning at the sessions presided over by Judge J. J. Mahoney of Lawrence. It was the appeal case of Peter Spanos from the Lowell district court, the charge being illegal keeping. The case went to trial yesterday afternoon and was given to the jury at 11:30 o'clock.

The jury had not reported when court took the noon recess at 1 o'clock.

The case of John J. Kirane, charged with keeping, was also brought up on appeal from the Lowell district court, was the next to go to trial. The case was given to the jury shortly before 1 o'clock.

In the court of the first sessions before Judge Stanley E. Qua, a jury was empaneled in the case of William Sass, charged with operating an auto in such a manner as to endanger the lives of the public. This case was on trial at the noon recess.

The alleged offense occurred October 29, 1922, when the defendant was charged with driving a truck that struck Mary McDonald. The McDonald girl, with six other girls, was walking along Broadway in Dracut when the accident happened.

Several cases were called for disposition also before Judge Qua. Philip L. Johnson, charged with non-support, was placed on probation upon agreement to pay expenses of $15.15.

Peter Kusick, charged with drunkenness, was sentenced to the state farm.

James Morrison was placed on probation with the understanding that he contribute $15 each week for the support of his minor children.

Richard Lannon, charged with assault upon an officer, was placed on probation.

Fred Brooks entered a plea of guilty to threatening and a fine of $25 was imposed. The alleged offense occurred during the strike at the Saco-Lowell plant.

Two other cases arising from disturbances in connection with the strike at the Saco-Lowell plant, were also called for disposition, and District Attorney Reading recommended that fines be imposed in each instance upon Tom Gerceless and Valerius Larkus, who were charged with assault.

The court was informed that the two men were included in a crowd from which a piece of pipe was thrown at some workers during the strike, but there was no positive evidence that it was these two who threw the pipe.

Judge Qua said that he was opposed to merely a fine in cases of violence growing out of industrial disturbances, because the fines were generally paid by friends of the defendants, and that the mere imposition of a fine had no deterrent effect. However, in view of the fact that there was no positive evi-

How To Put A "Kick" In It

—A tip for "wets" and "drys!"

We are all liable to feel "out of sorts" at times—need something with a "kick" in it to clear the brain, brighten the eye, put "pep" in the system.

Best way to do this is to take—with, or without, a "chaser"—that harmless yet thoroughly efficient family medicine, Beecham's Pills.

"Two for adults and one for children" is the phrase of health that has meant good digestion and a clear system to countless healthy, happy people the world over for the past 80 years.

PRaise for Lowell
POLICE DEPARTMENT

Believing that the citizens of Lowell should have brought to their attention the character of the men in the Lowell police department and their devotion to duty, William D. Ireland, of Portland, Me., has written an open letter to The Sun.

An auto owned by Mr. Ireland, manager of the Richardson, Hill & Co., stock brokers, of Portland, was stolen in Portland some time ago and suspicion was directed against William S. Smith, the young man who was arrested in Bangor and brought to this city to answer to a charge of theft of an auto here. Accompanied by a Portland officer, Mr. Richardson came to this city and through the efforts of the Lowell department eventually recovered his car.

Mr. Richardson's letter follows:

Editor Lowell Sun:

Lowell, Mass.

Dear Sir: You and your fellow citizens are certainly to be congratulated on the efficiency of your police department and their devotion to duty. I arrived in Lowell in the late afternoon of August 31st, a complete stranger in search of my automobile which had been stolen by a man I had heard was in their custody.

Captain David Terrell, who at that time should have been going off duty, gave the case his personal attention and did not leave until he had thoroughly investigated the prisoner and obtained from him a confession which ultimately led to the finding of my car.

This confession was immediately and officially followed in person by your superintendent of police, Thomas R. Atkinson, and by Inspector William F. Linton. Inspector Linton had also been working on the case very efficiently for a day or two preceding my arrival.

No stone was left unturned and no consideration was given by the officers in question or other members of the department with whom I came in contact, to hours, distances, time or anything else, which might help to settle the matter. All this was done for a complete stranger, not a resident of Lowell, and to find an automobile not even stolen from Lowell. I certainly want to pay tribute not only to the men mentioned above, but to the police department of Lowell and to commendate the citizens upon the efficiency of the department and the character of its personnel.

Thanking you not only for publishing this, but for the services which your city has rendered me, I am,

Very truly yours,

WILLIAM D. IRELAND.

Both originally located in the Kobe section of Japan, regarded as the safest part of the empire.

Mrs. Arthur Gorman, nee Kathleen Smith, is believed to have recently removed from Kobe to Korea. The other Lowell person is Samuel Maxwell, a brother of Moses Marks, Central street tailor. Mr. Maxwell's business is conducted in Kobe.

Charles Hedrick, brother of Clifton F. Hedrick who is employed in an ex-

Her Dream Realized -

MRS. JACK HOUK
1212 TENNESSEE ST., LAWRENCE, KAN.

EVERY young woman like Mrs. Houk before her marriage dreams dreams and has visions of her ideal home with her husband, and healthy, happy children to make her joy complete. But as time goes on her dreams are not realized, she has no children, her life is embittered and it is hard for her to be reconciled to the conditions as they exist.

To every young woman who is in this condition the following letter should bring hope and encouragement, as we know of numberless homes that have been blessed with children, just as this home was, after all hope had been abandoned.

Here Follows Mrs. Houk's Personal Letter:

"I was of a nervous disposition and always had a tired, worn-out feeling. I would get sharp pains in my side when working too hard or when walking too much and sometimes I would have these awful dragging down feelings. I have had such troubles since I was a very young girl and had got very little result from all the medicine I had taken, and one doctor told me that I would never have children unless I had an operation. I had heard a great deal about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound so I thought I would try it. By the time I had finished the fourth bottle I noticed a change in my health. We took a trip to California at this time and I kept on with the medicine. My health continued to improve and I now have a big, healthy baby boy six months old. I am not doing my own housework, but as I want to do good and strong first as a mother, I let my baby for me to be well while he is nursing. I have spoken highly of the Vegetable Compound to my friends, and I am more than willing for you to use these facts as a testimonial." Mrs. Jack Houk, 1212 Tennessee St., Lawrence, Kansas.

Fresh Calamity Hits Tokio

home office estimated the dead in Tokio at 10,000, in Yokohama at 100,000.

Reports 690,000 Casualties

On the other hand, Admiral Edwin A. Anderson, commanding the United States Asiatic Fleet, says the latest unofficial reports give the casualties in the capital and Yokohama as 240,000 dead and 450,000 injured. A wireless message from Admiral Anderson to Rear Admiral Edward W. Eberle, chief of naval operations, was picked up in San Francisco. Naval officers in San Francisco believe that Admiral Anderson, who is speeding to Japanese waters obtained advice of conditions in Japan by radio before communicating with the Rear Admiral Eberle. Another estimate, this one coming from the Eastern News agency, says that 32,000 persons have been killed in the entire stricken district.

273 Earth Shocks

Two hundred and sixteen distinct earth shocks were felt in Tokio last Saturday, followed by 57 on Sunday. The most severe tremor was of six minutes' duration.

The flames that swept the capital burned for fifty hours, leaving Tokio and its environs in ruins and desolation. Fire and earth convulsions together have devastated an area of twenty-one square miles in and about Tokio, demolishing 350,000 houses.

Suffering Not Exaggerated

The suffering of Yokohama, too, appears not to have been exaggerated. An official statement received by U. S. Navy, the Japanese consul general in San Francisco, says that the great port itself and the Yokosuka naval station have been wiped out.

This message, sent by a former Japanese consul general who is now at Shanghai, added that more than half of Tokio has been destroyed.

New Volcano Adds to Horror

From Osaka comes a despatch asserting that a new volcano has broken into activity in the Chichibu range, 50 miles northwest of Tokio.

Meanwhile, the Japanese cities and towns unaffected by the disaster are banding every effort to relieve the condition of the millions who are believed to be suffering from injuries and lack of food. Cargoes of rice are arriving at Yokohama and Shiragawa.

U. S. Ships Bringing Supplies

The efforts of the Japanese themselves are soon to be augmented by aid from across the Pacific. Seven United States destroyers and a cruiser are speeding to Yokohama with supplies, while two army transports expect to steam from Manila for Japanese waters today. All shipping board vessels in the Far East have been ordered to take any part in the relief work that may be assigned to them by Admiral Anderson. Shipping board vessels in Pacific coast ports have received instructions to suspend freight and passenger bookings for 30 days so as to insure the transportation of relief supplies.

Members of Imperial Family Killed

LONDON, Sept. 5.—(By the Associated Press Earthquake) The Japanese embassy here received a telephone message today from Princess Kishikawa in Paris saying she had received information that the Dowager Princess Yamafusa, Princess Hirokakan and Prince Moromasa, members of the Imperial family, are dead in Tokio as a result of the earthquake.

Famous Health Resort Wiped Out

A Central News despatch from Shanghai says it is feared that Nikko, the health resort at which the Japanese emperor has been staying during the summer was destroyed with terrible toll. Nikko is situated north of Tokio and approximately 50 miles southeast of Nigata.

Dr. Wheeler and a Mr. Mellison, prominent British residents of Yokohama and the French consul there are among the dead, says a Central News despatch.

Thousands Flock to Kobe

From the same source it is learned that all foreigners staying at Miyazoshita are safe with the exception of one named Hirst. Large numbers of the Japanese residents of Tokio and Yokohama are returning to those cities.

The British consul at Kobe reports

that thousands of foreign refugees are arriving there but that the details of the disaster are lacking, although it is confirmed that there was great toll in Tokio and Yokohama.

American Steamer Damaged

The American steamship Zelma City is reported to have been damaged during the upheaval, and to have run ashore near Yokohama. Suzuki and company, Japanese merchants in London, have informed Lloyd's that, as far as they could ascertain, there was no great loss of shipping from the earthquake.

Red Cross Quotas Fixed

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—Fixing of chapter quotas throughout the country today was the signal for the formal launching of the campaign of the American Red Cross to raise a $5,000,000 relief fund for sufferers in the Japanese earthquake zone. Divisional quotas totaling $5,250,000, the excess above the $5,000,000 goal being fixed to permit adjustments, were announced at Red Cross headquarters last night and divisional managers were instructed to assign quotas for all of the 3600 chapters of the organization.

The state department today was pressing its efforts to obtain information as to Americans in the stricken zone. Not only have lists of those of whom relatives and friends have sought information been sent to American diplomatic and consular offices in Japan, but consular officers stationed at other points in the Orient have been ordered there to assist in the work of obtaining information as to American citizens and giving them any assistance needed.

In addition to the seven destroyers of the American Asiatic fleet proceeding with relief supplies for the suffering, the cruiser Huron, flagship of Admiral Anderson, was steaming at full speed to Yokohama today with food and medical supplies, expecting to arrive there tomorrow morning, laden with relief supplies for Yokohama. She will be followed by the transport Merrit.

REV. FR. HEFFERNAN

Abstract of His Sermon at
Dedication of St. Michael's
School

Following is an abstract of the sermon delivered by Rev. Fr. Heffernan in connection with the dedication of St. Michael's new school. It was crowded out of yesterday's edition.

"The splendid outpouring of people on this magnificent occasion marks this as a memorable day, not only in the annals of this parish, but in the history of the city as well. Surrounded as we are, by bishop and clergy, at first glance we might think of it as a purely ecclesiastical affair, but it is a church ceremony as well—a gathering of people, regardless of creed, race or nationality. And in America is not such a gathering eminently proper, for is not every parochial school in our land an inspiration to youth, an inspiration that leads to loyalty in citizenship and lofty ideals in patriotism?"

"The ambition of every parochial school is to be a torch bearer of knowledge, a citadel of law and order, a protector of freedom and liberty. We know that often these truths regarding us are denied, but, and I make this statement boldly, we do strive to give that teaching without which no nation can survive, the foundation of a truly Christian life. So all citizens of our community should be here today to share in this important celebration, important not only to the people of St. Michael's parish but to the citizens of Lowell as well.

"To our school children come in all the innocence and purity of their first years of life. Our desire is to preserve this purity, to protect this innocence. We do more, we teach them the fundamental truths of Christianity which establish for them a moral law, and we endeavor to stamp indelibly on their youthful minds and hearts a respect for this law, so that when they take their places as citizens of this nation, they may reflect credit on themselves and their church. They are trained on principles founded on moral law and on truths that must be lived up to, if men are honest with themselves and true to their religion and their country.

"We find no fault with other schools except that we recognize the obligation of parents to send their children to schools wherein they may be trained in principles that make of them good citizens and worthy members of our communities. 'There can be little time for religion,' people will say, 'if time sufficient is given to the acquiring of necessary secular knowledge.' The church during twenty centuries has found it very easy to give, not only secular knowledge but at the same time to lay the foundation of that moral education that will lift body, mind and soul to a supernatural atmosphere where the child washed in the waters of Baptism and anointed with the chrism of Confirmation can live more properly the life of a Christian citizen. Without moral law, there can be no good citizenship. Theodore Roosevelt, a former president, tells us very emphatically that to educate a man's mind and not his morals makes him a menace to the community.

"From one end of the country to the other, there is today a cry for more religion. Where and when are men to get religion if not in the schools? In the earlier years of their existence? President Taft says, 'It is impossible to give religion to a child after his education is completed, because his mind has already been moulded, his thoughts trained in certain grooves. Perhaps in the not far distant future, the line between the Arctic circle and the Rio Grande will lead in civilization, but this prediction will never be realized unless the men and women who are to make up that civilization form their lives on principles that rise to lofty heights. God is the beginning, the center and the end of all things and without Him there can be no civilization that will endure.

"The God-fearing men who laid its foundation and built up this edifice of democracy were products of private schools wherein were taught the ten commandments and tenets of religion.

"No one need ask me for need, I tell you how strongly our nation is built not in what position it stands before the world, it has never yet been conquered. Still that soul training is denied today to the youth of our country until the schools have become practically godless. Oh, may God come back to them, to remain as He will in that building over there, in that school where there will be no room for radicalism or for the things that will destroy our country.

"Religion, education and patriotism will go hand in hand in the future as in the past."

HOW ST. MICHAEL'S
SCHOOL WAS BUILT

The new St. Michael's parochial school, formally dedicated Monday is another splendid example of craftsmanship of contractors of this vicinity. The building plans and specifications included all of the newest approved ideas in school construction and the contractors made a highly creditable and workmanlike job of their work. Special credit is due to the general contractor, Zori A. Houle of Detroit, who personally supervised the work. To Mr. Houle, who has made a specialty of such work for many years, it afforded another chance to add to his already well-established reputation as a builder and he made the most of it. The work is on a par with the fine construction emphasized by him when he built the St. Louis rectory and church and St. Joseph's church in Everett.

The crushed stone and gravel for the undertaking was supplied by Antonio

Pallotta of Bridge street. Mr. Pallotta operates a quarry and stone-crushing plant in Detroit, the product of which is widely used. Two mammoth crushers are now in operation there and the third is in the process of construction. Much of his product is used in modern road construction.

Barrett specification roofing, handed over twenty years, was laid on the new school by Arthur J. Roux of 147 Market street. The quality of his work, which may also be viewed on the high school annex, needs no comment. Suffice to say it was up to the standard as is always the case when Roux does the roofing.

Italy Challenges Right of League to Intervene

articles were to be disregarded, the whole of settlement of Europe would be shaken.

The articles in question were cited by Greece as the basis of her appeal to the league and stipulate that the council of the league has a clear right to an intervention when there is danger of rupture between any of the states which are members of the league.

Further discussion of the Greco-Italian crisis was adjourned to an unfixed date, in order to give the members of the council an opportunity to examine the Italian declaration and decide upon their future attitude in the crisis, which is generally regarded as having been aggravated by Signor Salandra's pronouncement.

Italian Troops Land
CORFU, Sept. 5.—(By the Associated Press.)—Two regiments of Italian infantry have landed here to relieve the sailors who have been garrisoning the island.

The Greek soldiers and gendarmes, together with the Greek prefect and police chief, have left for home aboard the steamer Imene. They were the last representatives of the Athens government in Corfu.

Vice Admiral Simonetti, the Italian governor of the island, has published a manifesto asking the people to be calm and to await a solution of the Greco-Italian dispute. He has visited all the military posts established in the interior and along the coast.

The Italian troops have taken up their headquarters at the famous villa which was once the summer palace of the former German Kaiser.

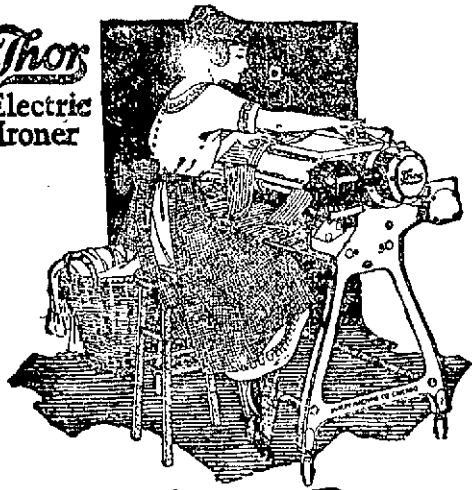

adicate," say the Daily Chronicle. The morning Post asserts that the league is now at the very crisis of its career and that it almost looks as if this present situation would be its death warrant.

Other newspapers urge the league to stand fast and not allow itself to be intimidated by the Italian premier, which would mean suicide. On the other hand, both the Daily Mail and the Daily Express indulge in drapes against Lord Robert Cecil. The latter newspaper visualizes the dire consequences that would result from the application of a moral and economic boycott to Italy, which it says would spell war wherein Great Britain and France would have to do most of the fighting.

Clean Men

Men who enjoy cleaning up as a boy enjoys a swim

THE best part of the world's work must be done by men who are big and men who are clean.

Take the railroad engineers—Nothing could be more useful than the work they do; few men carry so much responsibility.

If you ever knew a locomotive engineer you know how he enjoyed being clean—how he loved the luxury of washing. He never felt safe until he felt clean.

Lifebuoy Health Soap is a great favorite with railroad men and their families. They find that Lifebuoy not only cleans deeper and better—it also destroys invisible germs. Then, too, it is a soap that can be used frequently and generously on tender skin. It heals and soothes, and destroys the least trace of skin odor.

It is because of Lifebuoy's antiseptic properties that this soap is regarded as a great aid to family health.

The copious Lifebuoy lather releases a wonderful substance which removes all dangerous germ life that lodges on the skin. You can smell this antiseptic—a cleanly, wholesome odor which vanishes almost instantly.

Lifebuoy is absolutely pure—its bland oils of palm fruit and cocoanut are soothing and keep the skin in splendid condition. Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass.

Mothers—be sure that a cake of Lifebuoy is ready when your husband and children come home from work or play. Once they know it, no other soap satisfies. It costs little—yet its health protection is priceless.

The expedition traveled 1200 miles, the lives of three members being sacrificed. He spent 18 months with the late Rear Admiral Robert E. Peary when the latter explored for the first time the northern coast of Greenland.

Lady Factory Representative

LADIES! Commencing Tuesday, Sept. 4, and continuing the rest of the week, we have arranged for your entertainment a series of interesting, practical ironing demonstrations by a special lady representative of the manufacturer, and touching upon every phase of this absorbing problem.

You will see ironed before your eyes, perfectly, and with an ease that is fairly astonishing, not only flat pieces, so-called, but men's shirts, house dresses, children's clothing, undergarments, etc., and articles that you would otherwise believe it impossible to iron excepting by hand.

To see this wonderful (entirely automatic) device in operation is to realize that the recent prediction of a Workless Day is not far from fulfillment, when electricity will perform every household task at the mere push of a button.

THE MURDER MYSTERY

Lowell is the centre of a murder mystery which, however, may have had its origin perhaps fifty or a hundred miles away. It is brought to Lowell by the finding in the Merrimack river at Tyngsboro, two suitcases containing parts of a woman's body, but not the head nor any part having a physical mark that would assist in identification. Already the state police who are working hard on the case have several clues; but whether they will result in solving the mystery is yet doubtful.

Murder will out, it is said, but sometimes the traces left are so misleading that the culprits escape. It is hoped that the police will either find the head or receive some information that may lead to the detection of the guilty party. It is important that the names of women missing be sent to the police in order if possible, to help in solving this mystery.

The newspapers are giving much space to the gruesome case merely in an effort to aid the police in being the murderer to justice. If a foul murder were not committed, there would be no reason for disposing of the body piecemeal. That alone is the fact upon which the police are relying in the present case. They realize that a murder of the most brutal kind has been committed, and they hope that through the publicity given the case in the press, the victim may be identified and the murderer found and punished to the full extent of the law.

The police believe that the crime may prove to be a parallel of the Susan Geary case in which the body was disposed of in much the same way following a criminal operation.

We are quite confident that the solution of this mystery will show that the parties concerned are not in any way connected with Lowell.

THE JAPANESE DISASTER

If the reports from the vicinity of the earthquake in Japan are any where near being true, the disaster is one of the worst of the kind in recorded history. It is a sad blow to Japan, a rapidly growing and enterprising nation. The number of dead is estimated at from 200,000 to 250,000 in Tokyo and Yokohama alone, while many other towns and cities have also been devastated. The main upheaval was followed by fire which has multiplied the horrors of the disaster and the extent of the losses.

Japan is included in one of the worst seismic zones in the world and it experiences mild vibrations or shocks at some periods almost daily. The line of volcanic action affecting Japan extends from southeastern Asia across the Japanese archipelago, the Kurile Islands and the Aleutian chain to Alaska.

These convulsions of nature are due to volcanic action, chiefly to the formation of gases that cause an upheaval, or else the cooling or evacuation of gases or molten matter down deep below the surface, causing the crust of the earth to sink or collapse. There are various other causes, chiefly due to the force of gravity in restoring the equilibrium of the various parts of the earth, when from one cause or another, some portion of it is drawn away from the centre to an extent that destroys the natural balance. Nature soon rectifies such conditions by pulling in the out-leaving matter and holding the terrestrial sphere well balanced upon its axis.

This disaster in Japan comes at a time when the empire was enjoying a high degree of prosperity and when the government was prospering over the earth to find a good place for the outlet of her teeming population. Dwellings and other structures are of the flimsiest character and would be great food for a conflagration as they have proved in this case, according to the dispatches.

President Coolidge was prompt to issue a call for relief and to dispatch war vessels with orders to do everything possible for the sufferers and to look after the Americans there so far as may be possible.

The appalling calamity appeals to the humane sympathy of the other nations of the earth. Italy and Greece should stop their warring and use their efforts in helping to bring aid to the sufferers. The extent of the disaster is apparently beyond conception to those who have never experienced any upheaval of the kind. It would not be surprising if in time the greater part of the Japanese islands should be submerged. Those who live on these islands must realize that they are liable at any instant to be swallowed up in a seismic process such as that which has just spread ruin and disaster over a large portion of Japan.

SELECTIVE IMMIGRATION

Secretary of Labor Davis, who studied closely all conditions with reference to the immigration question while he was abroad recently, plans to present to congress at the next session a concrete legislation of his findings and conclusions. He has told Chief Justice Taft, who is expected to be the sponsor of a bill for selective immigration, that he has based on a study of the situation by agents of the immigration service at consulates abroad, the government of all nations upon reaching America, their surveillance of them to determine whether they can and will enhance American traditions and customs, and the extent of a five-year probationary period, during a part of which they may be deported for cause.

Secretary Davis wisely says that sometimes conditions at Ellis Island are far from desirable for the newcomers to our shores, but stringent rules are sometimes necessary if we are to be preserved from the importation of diseases that would otherwise result.

The proposed selective processing system to be conducted abroad, and strongly urged by Mr. Davis, is likely to eliminate many distressing conditions hitherto reported at Ellis Island. A more rigid, selective immigration law should result in excluding the undesirable and dangerous characters and bringing here only the rugged who mean to make their homes here and become loyal and law-abiding citizens. It should not, however, discriminate merely on the grounds of nationality as might easily be the case if the plans of Secretary Davis were left in the hands of prejudiced officials.

Cause For Suspicion

In the smoking car the conversation turned on the merits and demerits of various ways of preserving health.

One stout, florid man held forth with great eloquence. "Look at me!" he shouted. "Never a day's sickness in my life, and all due to simple food. Why, gentlemen?" he continued, "from the age of 20 to that of 10 I lived an absolutely regular life—no excessive delicacies, no late hours, no extravagance. Every day, summer and winter, I was in bed regularly at 5 o'clock and up again at 5 in the morning. I worked from 5 to 1, then had dinner—a plain dinner, mark my words; after that an hour's exercise, then—"

Road Philosophy

One road that leads to Overtown Goes crawling near the sky Along a ridge of western hills That stand serene and high.

Another road to Overtown Spirals through the valleys low, And turns and winds beside a brook With paces grave and slow.

And there are some who take the road That crawls along the sky, And some there are who take the road Where brook-bright meadows lie.

Since both roads go to Overtown, At Overtown folks say, If we but come, they little care About our choice of way.

ARTHUR WALLACE PEARMAN, in the Christian Herald.

Very Obstinate

This story comes all the way from Constantinople. One day a hotel's mother-in-law—a lady is a Turkish priest—fell into a torrential river which flowed past the hotel's house. The priest ran out to look for the body, and went upstream. "Why upstream?" asked his neighbor. "She drowned down," "You don't know my mother-in-law," replied the priest. "She is an obstinate— that I am sure she would insist on drowning against the current!"

Blamed the Weather

They met after a lapse of many years. The recognition was mutual and their greetings were cordial. "How lovely to see you again. Why, you've greatly changed a bit," said one. "So glad, and you, too, have hardly changed. Let's see, how long is it since we last met?" returned the other. "It must be ten years," "Time flies. And why have you never called to see me?" "My dear, just look at the weather we've been having!"

THE MAN ABOUT TOWN

About six weeks now before our next birthday, October 12, Columbus day, is the next red letter date on the calendar with Thanksgiving following close behind. Soon the first will be on the pumpkin and the latter in the shock. Somewhere the seasons seem to be a bit twisted, judging by the weather, but as we look upon our empty road this we can't help but recognize the overcast and blanket ads in our daily papers.

Truly as I pass the office of one local coal company in the downtown district I gaze with curious eyes on the big dump of coal piled up in the street window. Would that I had a dollar for every minute I have spent trying to figure whether it would make a bed and a half or two beds if broken up to suit the case.

There was a good deal of merriment created in superior criminal court yesterday morning shortly after the clerk began to call the roll of jurors. There were no responses to the first three names called, and the clerk suggested that the jurymen might be in the corridors. Court officers hurried out, and not only rounded up the three, but 52 others. Even the court attachés hurried to the isolated bureau crowded in.

hosts to the visitors. Every convenience was provided and every minute of the visitors' time was taken up. All points of interest were visited and competent guides were furnished upon request. The visitors, and there were well over a thousand of them registered from forty-two states, were extended every courtesy. Mr. Ricard did not forget to host for Lowell while at the convention and distributed over 250 number of commerce pamphlets containing Lowell data. Delegates from the northern New England states promised in many instances to stop a day in Lowell while en route home and look at the many points of interest in our city. This sort of publicity is the kind Lowell wants and needs. No better advertisement for a town could be asked than that its own folk talk about it. Such an attitude on the part of Californians has done wonders for that state. A bit of municipal housekeeping helps Lowell.

The following beautiful tribute to the late Rev. Francis J. Mullin, was written by Miss Margaret McCluskey of 225 Madison street in connection with the dedication of the memorial hall of St. Michael's church last Monday: Ring out sweet bell through future years.

Thy earnest, pleading call to prayer! Thy morn, at noon, at eventide, Thy entry weather or in fair talk Ring out thy gladdest hymn of joy! Tell out thy mellowed song of pain! Thy very heart thrills with our own, In sorrow's loss, or pleasure's gain.

Sweet blessed bell! thy voice today Flows softly through the incensed air, Yet entry weather or in fair talk As hearts and heads are bowed in prayer! For here today as dreams come true, We miss the dreamer brave of old, And put aloft a standard fair, And purer far than shining gold.

We miss that steadfast, gentle heart Our father, pastor, priest most true, The first dear shepherd of this fold Whose soul the dear God only knew, And shared our every hope and fear, Do we not long to clasp his hand, As we just clasped it yesterday?

So many days we knew our friend And love his noble manly grace, We sorely dreamed he'd steal away From his old home and accustomed place, But though he's gone, his memory stays, And clings to hearts now strangely still.

Then breathe sweet bell a prayer today For him whose dream is now fulfilled, And sing again for dear souls gone, Who daily longed to hear thy chime, For mother, father, brother, friend, We cherished in the olden time.

Though we see them not on this earth again, They wait in the far of skies, They greet our brave friends of our earlier years, And when Death is closing our eyes, May we hear with them, as we'll hear still soon.

Ring out from St. Michael's tower, The dear sweet bell that we blessed today, Strike for us eternity's hour.

Berton Braley's Daily Poem Unappreciated

Now the doors of education
Once again are opened wide
And the children of the nation
Troop unwillingly inside;
Are they not quite pleased and happy
Where there's knowledge to be got?
Well, to put it short and snappy,
They are not!

Do they not discover glamor
In the things their schoolbooks teach?
Do they not, in learning grammar,
Sense the magic of our speech?
Do they not with eager yearning
Hurry to the destined spot
Where the lamp of wisdom's burning?
They do not!

Now vacation's silly capers
Have been finished, put away.
Do they not find books and papers
More enthralling every day
Do they not begin perceiving
Just how lucky is their lot
To be studying, achieving?
They do not!

With unwilling feet they're trudging
Back again to enter school,
Which to most of them is drudging
Underneath a tyrant's rule.
It takes many years to tame them
And to show them what is what.
Do I blame them?
I do not!

one of which was mottled with stains that resemble human blood marks. This bundle was found at the river edge about three-fourths of a mile above the Lowell municipal bath house by Motorcycle Officer Charles Hamilton, whose attention to it first was attracted by a Collie dog who was attempting to tear it open, drawn to it possibly by the scent of human flesh. The bundle was made up of white duck cloth, woolly on one side, with a depression in one end which might have been made by a human head. Strips of cloth in the interior of the bundle bore discolorations that appear to be blood stains and the police also found a piece of a Boston newspaper dated February 5, 1923, a torn bit of calendar and a small strip of paper on which was the name and address of a

Lowell man and on the reverse side some figures hardly legible even under a magnifying glass. The name and address of the man would not be disclosed, but a probe was instantly begun.

Until the cloth in the bundle dries thoroughly Medical Examiner M. L. Ailing will not be able to ascertain whether the discolorations upon it are blood stains.

Another find which has been turned over to the police for examination is a piece of cloth, seemingly blood-stained, discovered in the river above the Tyngsboro bridge by Henry E. Gray, a retired letter carrier. He was traveling up river in a boat, accompanied by his dog and the animal's actions led him to the cloth strip which he later turned over to the Tyngsboro officers.

It was the expressed opinion of Capt. David Petrie of the Lowell police today that something will break within a few days in relation to the sale and purchase of the two suitcases already found. He does not believe they came from a local store but feels certain they were purchased either in a city or town in the Merrimack river valley and not far away from this city.

"The suitcases were bought recently," said Capt. Petrie "and for the sole purpose of using them in connection with the disposal of the dismembered body."

Capt. Petrie does not believe the suitcases ever were given any use other than to aid in the carrying out of the murder plot.

Before long the police will find out where the suitcases were purchased," he continued "and then the store in question will be asked to explain why this information was not volunteered the moment their discovery in the river was made known."

The present mystery has recalled to mind the famous Blodwin murder case more than 25 years ago when the body of a young woman was found headless in Chelmsford woods, with the head later being found under a bridge on a farm in the town where Blodwin once was employed.

The head was discovered by a constable who kept his find a secret while in the meantime he attempted to secure the promise of a reward if he should bring the missing head to light.

If memory serves he made an offer to the Boston Globe, but was faced with the following reply: "We are not dealing in heads."

Taking WINCARNIS

"I was very sick; lost almost 18 pounds in weight; was extremely weak and nervous, and could not get a single night's sound sleep. I had constant medical attention and the best of wholesome food, but my condition grew more alarming until I began taking Wincarnis, which helped me from the first few doses."

I have completely regained my former weight and strength, sleep soundly every night, eat most heartily and have an abundance of energy. My husband and my mother were so amazed at the effect of Wincarnis in my case that they both began taking it as a tonic. Today, they are just as loud in praise of Wincarnis as I am, and we do wish it were known to every weak, nervous or run-down person."

Sam Jones Enters the Hall of Fame by Pitching a No-Hit No-Run Game

YANKEE TWIRLER JOINS SELECT CIRCLE BY HOLDING ATHLETICS HITLESS AND SCORELESS

An Error By Scott and a Pass to Gallo-way Allowed Two Men to Reach First—Heilmann Again Takes Lead Among Am. League Batters—Wheat Replaces Hornsby in Nat. League—Giants and Reds Win

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—Sam Jones, the Yankee's solemn ball tosser from Woodfield, Ohio, wrote his name in large letters in the history of baseball yesterday by shutting out the Athletics in Philadelphia without a hit. The Yanks won 2 to 0. An error by Scott and a pass to Gallo-way in the first inning allowed two men to reach first. Heilmann again took the lead among American league batters. Wheat replaced Hornsby in National League. The Giants and Reds won.

Heilmann Takes Ruth
Babe Ruth made but one hit in four times at bat and retained the American league batting lead. Heilmann, the slugging Detroit outfielder, who smashed out two safeties in three times at bat, Heilmann is now leading with a percentage of .352 and Ruth trailing with .3316.

Wheat Replaces Hornsby
In the National League, Wheat, the Brooklyn veteran, replaced Rogers Hornsby of St. Louis as leading bats-

Sox of 1919 Game's Greatest Team

"KID" GLEASON

BY BILLY EVANS
CHICAGO, Sept. 5.—The baseball scandal of 1919 will ever remain with "Kid" Gleason.

The father of the White Sox of 1919 no doubt has caused the "Kid" to do some reminiscing.

Unquestionably, the White Sox of this year are the disappointment of the American league fans. The Sox are a good deal like a first division team, yet during the greater part of the campaign, Gleason's men have been blundering around in the second division, getting nowhere.

Early in the spring, while working in New York, I bumped into catcher Frank Snyder and pitcher Jack Bentley, star performers of the New York Giants. McGraw's team had just finished a long season series with the Sox, in which the champion champions had been pushed to the limit to get the edge.

"Chicago has a mighty good club, and should be up there," was the opinion expressed by the two of us. What I had seen of the Sox during spring training in the south caused me to entertain a similar opinion. Gleason had a club that would make trouble.

How Collins Views It
Only the other day, while talking to Eddie Collins as to the future of the Sox to be up there, he remarked:

"We have been off on the wrong foot from the very start and have never hit our stride. I am convinced that if we had won the ball game that we deserved to win that first series with Cleveland at the opening of the season it would have made a lot of difference with our club. All year it has been a case of no pitching when we hit the ball, and when we got the pitching, we failed to hit. That is the answer to all our troubles."

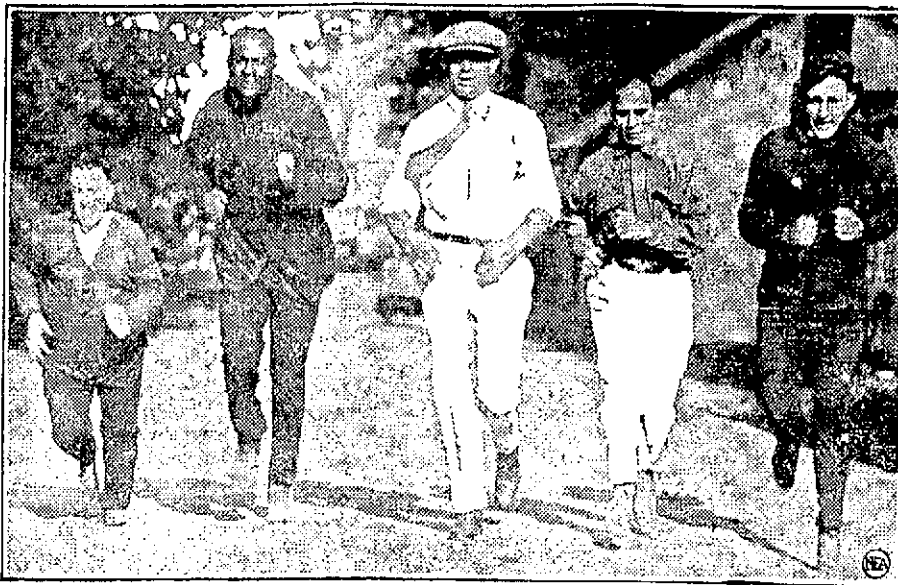

Getting back to Gleason and the scandal of 1919. Recently I had the great adjoining "Kid" on a trip from Boston to New York. The Sox had been roughly treated by the tail-enders. We had just finished talking about Chicago's failure to man. He is leading the Cardinals star by two points with a percentage of .354. Hornsby's inability to get a hit in three times at bat yesterday cost him the lead, as Brooklyn did not play.

Giants and Reds Win
The Giants and the Reds both won, staying the same distance apart, three and a half games, but the Pirates, who were beaten by the Reds, went back to a full game, now standing two behind the Cincinnati team. The Giants defeated Boston 3 to 0, Scott pitching the shutout, and allowing but four hits, against six by Cooney. The Reds trimmed the Pirates 2 to 1 in a pitching duel.

Senators Beat Red Sox
The Senators took a 3 to 1 victory from the Red Sox in Boston, despite the fact that Fullerton allowed only five hits to Zahner's six.

The Cubs defeated the Cardinals in Chicago 3 to 2. In Detroit the Tigers defeated the White Sox 5 to 2 in an uneventful game in which Barrett hit a homer. The Indians trimmed the Browns 6 to 2 in Cleveland.

Billy Evans says

Every sport thrived on uncertainty. If everything was always out and dried, if the unexpected never happened, sports would soon lose popular favor.

Golf will always be an interesting sport because of the great uncertainty of the game. Golf champions just get acquainted with their titles when they are dropped into the discard. The making of a new champion always adds a new flavor to the game.

Take, for instance, the recent winning of the national open championship by Bobby Jones of Atlanta. If Gene Sarazen had repeated the event would have added no excitement to the game. Instead, the winning of the title by Bobby Jones, after he had time and again seemed certain to go over, was a great thing for the royal and ancient pastime.

In tennis for a half dozen years a very few players have monopolized the field, to a certain extent killing interest. Bill Tilden and Bill Johnston have had a decided edge in the masculine end of the game, while Mrs. Mahory has been even more dominant among the women players of the United States.

The recent defeat of Mrs. Mahory by Miss Wills, the 17-year-old school girl wonder from California, is the finest thing that could have happened to the tennis game. The triumph of Miss Wills, a colorful miss who has been coming fast for two or three years, will tend to stimulate interest in tennis, particularly among the women players. The unexpected defeat of Mrs. Mahory simply proves that no player in any sport, however great, is invincible.

Baseball thrives on uncertainty. That is why for six months it can draw big crowds. Championship play at stated intervals is the full, important, football game played once a week, draw out the sport lovers. The big tournaments in golf always excite the populace. But after all no sport has the direct appeal of baseball, because no other sport is played every day for six months.

I have seen a number of unexpected happenings in baseball this year. Recently, Washington invaded Cleveland for a five-game series. The Washington club had an outfielder on first, a catcher at third, the manager of the club, who has practically retired from active play, at second and an ailing pitching staff. Injuries had rendered the Washington club a mighty aggregation. It looked like a soft series for Cleveland. Four out of five sure and possibly a clean sweep of the series. Cleveland took the first game, then dropped the next four. That night aggregation played the second championship.

Recently I worked a double-header at the Yankee Stadium in New York with the Detroit club. New York won the first game 10 to 4. A crowd of 60,000 was in attendance. When New York came to bat in the last half of the ninth of the second game, the score was 7 to 5 in favor of Detroit. The first two men were retired. Thomsen had hit out of the park as the final inning was being played. With two strikes on Ruth the game seemed over. But hit a home run on the next ball pitched. Elmer Smith, the next batter, hit the sec-

DUNDEE PEEVED, SAYS HE CLAIMS TITLE

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—The lightweight championship match scheduled for tonight at the Yankee stadium between Benny Leonard, titleholder, and Johnny Dundee, featherweight king and challenger, has been postponed indefinitely. Jimmy Johnston, matchmaker of the Cromwell A. C., announced yesterday, because of Dundee's poor physical condition.

Dundee, when informed of Johnston's announcement, said he would claim the lightweight championship of the world if Leonard did not meet him tonight. "I will not agree to a postponement," he said. "If Leonard does not fight I'll claim the title and put it up to the New York commission."

Leonard wanted the fight postponed because he found as couldn't make the weight, and wanted more time to reduce. "I was never in better condition. There is nothing the matter with my legs and there never has been. I am ready to fight and Leonard is not."

FOOTBALL

Dear Sporting Editor:

Will you please publish the following:

The Ponies football team will play their first game of the season next Sunday, with the Rovers the opposing team. Both teams have been through stiff workouts and are fully prepared for the battle. Through rivalry existing from last year, when the Rovers defeated the Ponies, a great game is expected.

The Ponies issue a challenge to any and all teams whose weight is 120. We would like to hear from St. Patrick's Junior Holy Name or St. Peter's Cadets. For names call 754-M. Eddie Leavitt, between 6 and 7 o'clock.

The Ponies will practice every night this week at 6:15 and the following are asked to report: McGowan, Crabtree, Gardiner, Martin, Burke, Leavitt, Clancy, Carley, Knight, Taplin, Nerney, Carley, Hilkey, McDonald, Mullarkey, D. Mullarkey W. and Irwin.

We thank you,
EDWARD R. LEAVITT,
Business Manager.

KENWOOD ROVERS
The Kenwood Rovers have organized for the 1923 football season and are out to play some of the fastest games in the city. If the managers of the following teams will accept Captain (forward) as soon as they are organized, they will be placed on the Rovers' schedule: Wanderers, Indian Seconds, Sharp's Nobles, Ponies, Billerica, Wildcats, St. Peter's Cadets and the St. Patrick's Junior Holy Name.

The Rovers will pick their team from the following men: Joe Murphy, C. Howard, S. Martell, M. Canale, M. Calkins, C. Murphy, F. Minton, L. Latham, J. Callahan, D. Callahan, R. Corbett, J. Corbett, J. Casey, L. Vinal, E. Shields, E. Parent. Sunday, September 2, the Rovers will open their season with a game on the Lakeview avenue ball grounds where they will line up against the strong Ponies eleven. The Rovers are confident of repeating last year's performance when they beat the Ponies 12 to 6.

The manager of the Rovers wishes to announce that if the crowd is not kept off the field of play, the game will be stopped until the field is clear. The crowd greatly hampered the open field work of the Rovers in the last contest held on the Ponies grounds.

and ball pitched for a home run. Pipp singled and Ward cut on through an infield error. Ruth, Johnston sent in as a pinch hitter, doubled and the score was tied New York won out in the next inning. No game ever demonstrated the uncertainty of baseball more than that one.

Champion in Superb Physical and Mental Condition for Firpo Bout

Going Into Fight to Trade Punches Until Something Drops, He Declares

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Sept. 5.—(By the Associated Press)—Jack Dempsey starts his final work of training today in preparation for the defense of his world's heavyweight championship against Luis Angel Firpo at the Polo grounds a week from Friday night.

Dempsey plans to work with the mauling, hard-hitting heavyweights for the balance of the week, and then switch to light sparring partners to put him on edge.

Refreshed by his layoff yesterday, Dempsey in the opinion of his handlers, is in superb physical and mental condition for the final spurt of his training campaign.

Yesterday the champion, willingly talked about the impending contest. He declared he was going to be ready for whatever might happen when he faces the South American.

"I get all sorts of advice about Firpo," Dempsey said. "I don't care if they say he's tough or soft. I'm going to be ready. A fellow can't take any chances with a guy that can sock. I'm going into the fight to trade punches until something drops. And I hope that something won't be me."

I expect that Firpo will pull everything he can. I'm going to do the same thing. I'm not going to wait until he hits me—not if I can sock him first."

How Firpo Beat Brennan
NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—(By the Associated Press)—Luis Angel Firpo, who meets Jack Dempsey September 14 for the world's heavyweight title, fought the first major battle of his career in Madison Square Garden last March against Bill Brennan, Chicago veteran.

Firpo won by a knockout in the fourth round, and Brennan spent a week in a New York hospital recovering from concussion of the brain and other effects of the beating he suffered. The fight came with dramatic suddenness, ending the center class fight, face streaming with blood from a gash over one eye had been trailing his opponent on points. A terrific right landed back of Brennan's ear was the punch that brought victory to Firpo.

The blow sent Brennan crashing to the floor where he lay inert even after the count of ten. His seconds carried him to his corner and he was partially revived.

He was taken to the hospital next morning.

The story of the twelfth round: "Firpo rushed from his corner and landed three smashing rights to the head. Brennan's right upper arm and followed with right and left to the body. Firpo forced the Chicagoan back with two hard rights to the head. But he sensed something was wrong. Firpo tore loose a battery of rights and lefts to the head and body. Brennan tried to duck out of his adversary's reach but was caught with a right swing to the jaw. The South American leaped in and again swung his right, landing behind the ear, and Brennan went down for the count."

Firpo is Confident
ATLANTA, Ga., Sept. 5.—(By the Associated Press)—Luis Angel Firpo believes that his queer ring style will be more valuable to him against Jack Dempsey than all the American pugilistic tricks he could learn.

The South American's sparring partners are authorized for the statement: "He can't tell you what the Angel is going to do next."

"He doesn't box well and seems awkward," they say. "Yet he keeps a fellow guessing. Sometimes it looks like he's going to get ready to swing and then the left shoots out, and vice versa."

Joe Clarke, the India Ghost, one of the shiftest veterans of the game, said Firpo is the "foolish man" he ever stepped around with.

"I can't tell what that man is going to do next," he said yesterday after taking a jabbing in his sparring round with the challenger for the world's title. "And you can't beat him into a punch. He moves you left and he moves you right and he punches you hard till you can't see nothing but stars."

"I boxed Dempsey and I boxed all the good ones, but he did box me as hard as I could. I boxed one I ever seed. He was a real Massa Dempsey a terrible fighter."

WOMEN'S GOLF TITLE

MONTREAL, Sept. 5.—One of the strongest international fields in the history of the event will compete for the Canadian women's golf championship here beginning September 17.

The American entries include Miss Augusta Collett, of Providence, national titleholder, Miss Alexia Stirling, of New York, and Mrs. Dorothy Sandberg, head of the team for member holder of both the American and Canadian championships. England will be represented by Mrs. W. A. Gavin, Mrs. Alan MacBeth and Miss Edith Lettich.

AMERICANS TO PLAY PICK OF TWO LEAGUE TOMORROW NIGHT IN GAME FOR BENEFIT OF SULLIVAN FUND

The Lowell Americans, champions of the City Twilight league, which closed a most successful season on Labor day, will meet a picked team from the other three teams of this league on the South common tomorrow night for the benefit of the Sullivan fund.

The suggestion to play this game was presented and accepted at a meeting of the league directors and managers held at the Crescent alleys last night. The news was conveyed to James J. Smith, chairman of the Sullivan reception committee, and he expressed his approval and assured the league officials of complete co-operation.

The entire proceeds will be turned over to the reception committee. Collectors representing those preparing for the "welcome home" to Lowell's famous aquatic star who conquered the treacherous waters of the English channel, will be on hand to pass among the crowd, and it is hoped that the successful season. The players on the four contending teams, the umpires, and officials and several invited guests are expected to attend.

Mrs. Hagen Following in Walter's Wake

By Roy Grove
NEA Service Writer
SHAKER HEIGHTS, O., Sept. 5.—Walter Hagen, the world's greatest golfing professional, has but one pupil who hesitates here in memorization of the golfer's widow because that one pupil is his wife.

Mrs. Hagen is being carefully groomed by the master of the putt, and in due time, will be able to pace around with the best of them, on her way to the woman's national title.

"Mrs. Hagen is one of the best pupils I have ever taught," says Walter. "I don't say that because she is my wife, but will leave it to your judgment when I tell you she went around in 35 the other day over a tough Pennsylvania course."

Watches Walter Daily
"That's a score most men would like to turn in and in a few years we ought to hear from her as a successful tournament player."

Walter is teaching her daily and she in turn is watching him constantly in his tournament and exhibition playing. Under these conditions she sees Hagen at his best, and learns exactly what her golfing husband would do under various circumstances with the drive and the maul.

"I am not expecting to play in tournaments," modestly declares the beautiful Mrs. Hagen. "At least until Walter tells me I may. No, I never took an interest in the game nor swung a club until he showed me Sunday. And replies through this paper. That was not until two years ago and then it was everything at first sight."

Keen Golf Player
"I play as hard from the gallery as Walter does on the links. I always go around with him in his exhibitions. I try to catch his game as well as the other people."

Not alone that, but Mrs. Hagen is a sort of barometer to the spectators. At the various holes she will start down the fairway and stop at a point where she judges Walter will drive his ball, and nine times out of ten she is right.

Mrs. Hagen knows his game as well as he does. By following her around closely in these rounds you will see the great Mr. Hagen on every play.

The writer accompanied her over the links at the Shaker Heights Country club during the Professional Golfing Association's qualifying rounds.

Walter broke the course record with a 68.

READY FOR FALL SEASON AT THE Y. W. C. A.

Vacations over, the lure of the beaches and the mountains less enticing, work for fall and winter is being turned to with fresh energy by the various workers at the Y. W. C. A.

Miss Lucille Shirley, girls' work secretary, and Miss Fern Graden, executive at the International Institute, have returned from an automobile tour through the south and resumed their old duties. They report a fine trip to Miss Shirley's home at Columbia, S. C., and on their return covered the 1240 miles in four days. Miss Shirley drove during the entire trip.

Miss Valerie Riebert, Polish worker at the International Institute, spent her summer vacation at her Michigan home and has entered her old duties with new zeal.

One new worker has been added to the staff at the International Institute in Palmer street, succeeding Mrs. Helen Cassinus who recently resigned in order that she might have more time to devote to her health and family. Mrs. Cassinus has gone to California and will make her home there.

The new worker is Miss Constantina Coulehoucas of Constantinople, N. H., who came to this country from Greece when but four years old. She is a graduate of Manchester high school and matriculated at the New Hampshire State college at Durham, receiving her B. A. degree there. Miss Coulehoucas' parents were the first Greeks to settle in Manchester, in which city there is now a thriving colony of such large numbers as are continually being added.

Miss Coulehoucas speaks English, Greek and French fluently. During the World war she served as an interpreter with the United States Food Administration.

HEAVY TAX RATE FOR TOWN OF DRACUT

As predicted in The Sun two weeks ago the tax rate for the town of Dracut for the year 1923 will be $42 per thousand. Kinks o' the Links

Must a player's ball lie on the green in order for him to have the right to remove some loose impediment that is on the green and which he feels may affect his next shot, possibly, prevent him from holing out?

A player has the right to remove loose impediment from the putting green even though his ball does not lie on the green. The rule states that the player has such a right, irrespective of the position of the player's ball. Which would mean that it doesn't matter whether the ball is on the putting green, through the green or in a hazard.

Smith and Jones are playing a handicap match in which Smith is giving Jones a stroke a hole. On a certain hole they both score a 6. Deducting the stroke that Smith is giving him, Jones has a 5 for the hole. Smith had the honor at the hole in question. Does he retain the honor since both had a 6, or does the fact that Jones, less his handicap stroke, had a 5, entitle him to the honor at the next hole?

Jones has the honor at the next hole. The fact that both players made a 6 is given no consideration. Jones, by deducting his stroke allowance, won the hole with a 5 and is entitled to the honor at the next tee.

When a ball is hit by an opponent's ball on the fairway must the ball be dropped or replaced as near as possible to its original position?

It must be dropped. Balls can only be placed on the putting green.

Puzzling Plays

The Play

There is a runner on first base. The batsman to the shortstop. The hit and run play. The shortstop takes the ball slightly, and realizing he has no chance to get the runner at second, cuts loose a hurried throw to first to get the batsman.

The throw is wild and gets away from the first baseman, and the base umpire believes that it has gone into the player's bench, which according to the ground rule entitles the runners to advance two bases.

The runner from first slid hard into second and slightly injured his ankle. He made no attempt to go to third on getting to his feet. The base umpire waved him over to third and he started to jog to that base.

The catcher of the team in the field recovered the ball and threw the ball to the third baseman, who touched out the runner coming into third.

The ball did not go into the player's bench. The umpire back of the plate so ruled.

What about this play?

The Interpretation
The mistake in this case must be charged against the umpire.

The base umpire, believing the ball had gone into the bench, waved the runner, who had stopped at second to advance to third.

The player, in following the dictator of the umpire, is touched with the ball and apparently retired.

Common sense must decide this play. Since the player advanced because the umpire so ordered him, there is no reason why he should suffer because the ball didn't go into the bench. The umpire should have sent the runner back to second.

FOOTBALL PRACTICE
The St. Peter's Cadets football team, which claimed the 110 pound city championship last season, is out to add to its laurels on the gridiron this fall. Coach Howe has issued a call to all candidates to report on the South common tonight at 6:30 o'clock for the first practice session of the season.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

STRAND THEATRE

A picturesque and exciting romance of the south seas is promised at the Strand for the last three days of the week, beginning with the matinee on Thursday, in Goldwyn's "Lost and Found," written by Carey Wilson of Goldwyn's editorial department and directed by H. A. Walsh. The action takes place in Tahiti where the Goldwyn concern sent a boat load of actors and equipment and featured prominently is the old slave trader with House Peters as "Captain Blackbird."

As a second feature for the week-end booking, the management has secured "Scars of Jealousy," a timely dramatic production which has Marguerite De La Motte in the leading role, assisted by Frank Keenan, Edward Burns and Carey Hughes. This also is supported by the Weekly and a strong comedy, all of which rounds out a program of exceptional merit for patrons of the Strand.

"Lost and Found" is the only photograph for which the entire cast was sent to the south seas location. All of the scenes, with the exception of some of the interiors, were photographed in Tahiti and on board a ship specially chartered for that purpose. Director Walsh had several big mob scenes in which thousands of natives took part and he succeeded in getting some of the most thrilling mob scenes ever filmed.

The story concerns a wealthy planter named Cochran whose wife deserted him for the island governor and who takes her eldest daughter Fern, leaving the baby Margo. The latter is crippled as the result of an accident due to the mother's haste to leave and Cochran becomes embittered against all women and takes to the seas as Captain Blackbird. Years later the woman and her daughter are deserted by the governor and the captain comes in contact with his daughter without knowing who she is. He forces her to marry a scoundrel of a mate and when he learns of her identity he tries to take her back. A terrific fight ensues in which the natives take part and it is interesting to see how it comes out. See for yourself.

"Scars of Jealousy" is a fairly good drama of the south, with an unusual but not very convincing twist. The suspense of a southern planter is the hero and his entertainment of the natives is a work of art and it is one that will appeal widely.

Today is the last showing of Richard Dix in "The Purple Dawn." This picture has a run of four days at the Strand and unapologetically will testify to its excellence. Joy Stewart in "The Love Brand" completes the bill.

THE RIALTO THEATRE
Local movie fans will rejoice at the announcement that dainty Bessie Love has returned to movieland and can be seen at the Rialto in her very latest photoplay "The Purple Dawn," which is the chief attraction there Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

"The Purple Dawn" is a story of the underworld and Chinatown. Miss Love is seen in the role of a little Chinese girl, Mei Fan. Her foster father promises her in marriage, according to the old Chinese custom, to Quan Pao, a wealthy merchant, but she, here and broed in America resists this fate and prays to be allowed to choose her own mate according to the American custom. Miss Love has never had a part so suited to her wistful and charming personality. As the little white flower of the Orient, she expresses appealingly the varied emotions of fear, courage, hate and love, despair and exaltation.

Since the Vladimir and there has been an alarming increase in the consumption of narcotics and in spite of the vigilance of the government, tremendous quantities of lethal drugs is under their very noses. How this illicit traffic is carried on is shown in "The Purple Dawn." The supporting cast includes Fredella Turner, Edward Dell, J. P. Gordon and Wm. E. Aldrich.

The companion feature is "The Little Church Around the Corner" a Warner Brothers classic with Kenneth Harlan, Claire Windsor, Robert Rosoworth, Pauline Starke, Walter Lewis, Alex. Francis and Cyril Chadwick. Briefly, the theme of the story deals with the fact that there's a little church in every human heart. One of the many highlights in the classic is declared to be realistic and the scenes which were constructed at the Warner studios in Los Angeles.

As an extra added attraction, the management has secured for showing in this program "Red Russia Revealed," an authentic William Fox two reel educational film of conditions as they actually are in Soviet Russia. The Fox entertainment by hard and steady work have secured some intimate close-ups of Lenin and Trotsky the Russian leaders and also depict the social and economic conditions of Red Russia. If you would learn the truth and see for yourself and if you are interested in the fate of Russia, one of the world's greatest governments, you will more than enjoy "Red Russia Revealed."

STILL CONSIDER PEACE OFFER

Gov. Pinchot to Meet Leaders
in Coal Controversy in
Executive Session

Issues Between Operators
and Anthracite Miners Will
Be Canvassed Again

HARRISBURG, Pa., Sept. 5.—(By the Associated Press) Issues between mine operators and the miners' union in the anthracite region will be canvassed again today before Governor Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, by representatives of both sides. Peace proposals which the governor advanced to avert the suspension of the anthracite strike are still under consideration although attitudes of both the operators group and the union leaders were today still holding them far away from an agreement.

Governor Pinchot expected to meet the principals in the controversy in executive session, Samuel D. Warren, chairman of the general policy committee of anthracite operators, and John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, promised to lead back to the sessions the associates who have stood with them in the protracted but fruitless negotiations of the last two months which failed to prevent the break.

Although the governor has suggested that a 10 per cent wage increase be given the miners, that all but eight hour employment be eliminated, that the union be recognized and given opportunity to collect dues in company offices, and that collective bargaining principles be followed in the industry's relationship between employer and employee, the program had not won acceptance when the meeting began today.

Anthracite operators indicated it would be only accepted on condition that the contract made with the union and incorporating the provisions named be fixed to run a term of years, with annual wage revisions controlled by arbitration. The union, unwilling in opposition to arbitration, has asked a greater percentage of interest in wages of all day workers in the field and has, while tendering renewed negotiations, stood by its other demands including that for "check-off" collection of union dues.

LOCAL LEGIONAIRES GO TO MARBLEHEAD

Nine delegates of Lowell Post left the city today for Marblehead to attend the annual state convention of the American Legion. Commander Jos. A. Molloy heads the delegation. Other members are: Stephen C. Garrity, Joseph Dineen, Colin C. McDonald, J. Henry Gilbride, Stephen Kearney, John P. O'Grady, William J. White and John J. Walsh.

Following the regular meeting of the post last night at Memorial Auditorium a conference of the delegation took place and it was decided to enter in caucus upon arrival with the various other posts of Middlesex county. The Lowell delegation goes to the convention unpledged. A boom for Joseph A. Molloy for state treasurer will be started however, and the Lowell boys hope to put him across. Mr. Dineen has served very acceptably as post treasurer for three years and is intensely popular.

Walsh Wants Re-election
John J. Walsh of Lowell, who has served two years as state historian, is a solid backing of his post. From indications at last night's meeting, it appears that the present state administration does not stand in any way with the local legionnaires and support of a new ticket headed by General Edwards is quite probable.

Mayor Donovan has authorized all municipal department heads to give leave of absence over the convention to all employees who are to attend the convention as delegates or alternates.

TEACHERS OF SEWING

Those Employed on Playgrounds Worked Hard for
Pageant

Owing to the historic pageant held this year as the closing feature of the public playgrounds, the usual exhibition of the work done under the supervision of the sewing teachers was omitted. But the work this year was a great improvement upon that of past years. The costumes used in the closing pageant were supposed to be made by the pupils who wore them, but many of those who appeared in the dances did not take any lessons in sewing. The fact was, that a very large portion of the work was done by the sewing teachers, and most of them worked for several nights preceding the event, till after midnight, getting the costumes ready. Not only this, but several of them had to call in their friends to assist them in order to have all the details of the work completed on time.

They played a very important part in making the pageant a success although in the distribution of the credit for the event, they seemed to be forgotten. The sewing teachers with the schools and playgrounds they attend were as follows: Margaret A. McGraw, Butler and Richmond avenue playgrounds; Emily Bourke, Moody school, Fayette street playground; Miss May Sullivan, Greenhedge and Shedd parks; Margaret Riley, Varnum school and South common; Margaret Turgeon, South common and Alken street; Lillian Chisholm, Pawtucketville and Lincoln schools; Mrs. Grant, Franklin and Bartlett schools; Ella Mulcahey, Mercy school and Middlesex village; Rose Ward, North common.

WILL MEET TO DISCUSS A WAITING ROOM

The office of the Courier-Citizen Co. at Keating square, to be vacated when the company moves into its new home in the old Prescott mill storehouse, may be converted into a waiting room for the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway Co.

The leasing over of the street floor of the Courier-Citizen Co. will be the topic of discussion at a conference between officials of the railway company and members of the railroad committee of the city council to be held late this afternoon.

President Gallagher of the city council will advocate the leasing of that office by the company for a waiting room on the grounds that it would serve the purpose in every way, as the floor space is large enough and then, again the waiting room at that spot would accommodate all patrons of the electric cars, inasmuch as it has entrances on both Merrimack and Paige streets.

Reservation has been made for Edward J. Ivers, Chief de Chemin de Fer de la Societe des Quatre Hommes et Huit Chevaux, a legion organization which might be correspondingly compared to the shrine in Masonry.

The navy department has been most generous in assignment of its fleet, and co-operation in the various events of the program. Orders have been issued, which will bring to Marblehead, the battleships Florida and Delaware, a division of destroyers, the submarine tender Bushnell and her division of submarines, and probably the new airplane carrier Langley. The war department and the Massachusetts National Guard have also done much to assist the program, including the assignment of the entire 101st Engineers regiment to participate in the parade and sham battle.

HEAVY FINES IMPOSED CHARGE FOR SWITCHING CUT

District Court Deals Drastically With Intoxicated
Motor Vehicle Operators

Joseph Souza, arrested in Billerica on August 28 for drunkenness, operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor and driving without a license, was fined $100 in district court this morning for operating while drunk and an additional $20 for driving without a license. The drunkenness charge was filed. Defendant was arrested by Officer Adams, who testified that the man was in such a condition that he had to lift him out of the machine.

Souza's case was one of three automobile cases disposed of this morning. Officer Lamy was found guilty of drunkenness and operating while under the influence and paid a fine of $100.

Walery Gorzyca, was arrested by Officer Thomas Maroney in Kenney square last night. He was driving an automobile in the direction of Prescott street when the officer noticed the absence of lights on his machine. He signalled the operator to stop and asked him if he was aware of anything amiss with his machine. Gorzyca got out to investigate and fell from the running board into the officer's arms.

He was fined $100 for operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor.

Breaking and entering and larceny were the charges preferred against Joseph Cassie. Officer Lamy testified that he found defendant in the tenement of Panagotis Klopis in Adams street on the evening of August 28. A watch and other jewelry amounting to $54 was taken from the premises. Cassie pleaded guilty and was fined $100.

Richard Raymond, 27, was charged with non-support by his 19-year-old wife, who said he gave her $1.50 last week, bought bread for her once in a while and told her if she didn't like it she could eat out. She also stated that he ordered her out of the house last Saturday. A finding of guilty was returned and Raymond was given a suspended sentence of five months in the house of correction, which will be carried out if defendant does not pay $10 weekly to his wife's support.

A non-support charge against Leo J. Lemire brought a finding of guilty and a sentence of six months in the house of correction, suspended for a year.

Alfred Ouellette was fined $50 for a statutory offence. A request for time in which to pay the fine was denied.

A fine of $10 was imposed on William J. Briere for drunkenness, while for a similar charge, Stanley Kaczmarek was given a suspended sentence of four months to the house of correction. Continuances were granted Stephen Agnietovich, Wenton Wankevich and Paul Taylor, all charged with drunkenness.

A Chesham street riot case Martin Zukowski $20, when he was fined that amount for assault and battery. Testimony of several witnesses showed that he struck a neighbor without provocation and attempted to do bodily injury with a heavy file.

James MacCloud was continued until September 15. He is charged with maintaining a liquor nuisance.

New Haven Road Lightens
Tariff on Coal From Providence to Lowell

Discontinuance of 60 Cent
Charge Brought About by
Chamber of Commerce

The switching charge of sixty cents per ton on coal shipped to Lowell from Providence will be discontinued after today by the New Haven railroad.

As the result of efforts of the Lowell chamber of commerce the railroad has agreed to absorb the charge in the belief that this concession will in the end prove more profitable to the road. This step puts the New Haven on a competitive basis with the Boston & Maine which charges $1.32 per gross ton from Boston to Lowell. The New Haven's charge per gross ton from Providence here, switching charges omitted, will be $1.45. The difference of 13 cents apparent there is neutralized by the same actual difference in the water rate charge to the two ports.

To the ultimate consumer the concession means little at first glance, as it will have an effect on the price of coal and will not serve to lower it one penny. However, to coal dealers and industries this is a great boon. They may now have coal consigned to them at either port at the same cost and by careful planning always avoid the more congested terminal. This assures better deliveries.

Officials of the New Haven feel confident that by their action in absorbing the switching charge the increase in shipments will more than offset the switching charge loss. The new ruling applies to both anthracite and bituminous coal.

Edmund M. Chinn, son of John I. Chinn, Palmer street optometrist, is to be general manager of the Hydro-Manu. facturing Co., a $50,000 concern which is expected to file incorporation papers at the state house within a few days. The new concern is to be backed wholly by Lowell capital.

The manufacture of toys and novelties for the trade will be the chief interest of the new corporation. definite decision has not been reached as to where the plant will locate or how many hands will be employed. Sites in Lowell and in Reading are at present under consideration.

LOWELL MAN AT HEAD OF NEW COMPANY

At a recent meeting of the A. O. H., the following committee was named to act as a delegation to Hibernians to the Henry Sullivan reception: James J. McManmon, Patrick Finnick, William Nelson, Joseph Garrity, John Hickey, Patrick Hickey, Thomas Haley, Dennis Carthy, John McInerney and Denis Dwyer.

Reduce the Skidding Danger

BUICK 4-WHEEL BRAKES

BUICK four-wheel brakes reduce to a minimum the skidding danger every driver encounters on wet pavements.

The action of the simple yet positive Buick brakes not only slows down the car safely but keeps it steady, preventing skidding to either side.

Buick four-wheel brakes operate with slight pressure on the service brake pedal, are of the Buick-proved external contracting type and function independently of the emergency brake.

Buick has taken this advanced step of designing four-wheel brakes on its 1924 cars in conformance with its well-known policy of providing owners with the safest and most dependable transportation.

We will be pleased to give you a demonstration and let you prove the effectiveness of Buick four-wheel brakes yourself.
